DEFENCE WANTS TO SEE RICHESON'S CASE EVIDENCE

The attorneys who will defend the Rev. Clarence V. T. Richeson, who stands indicted for the murder of Avis Linnell, will have a conference with District Attorney Pelletier to-morrow to make final arrangements for the trial which will begin on January 15—only a little more than four weeks away.

The purpose of the conference became known to-day. It is said Richeson's attorneys are anxious to examine certain evidence in possession of the government.

While it is not unusual in murder cases for the prosecution to permit lawyers for the defendant to see evidence which it has in its possession, it was said to-day that the counsel desires to see certain evidence which the District Attorney does not wish them to have.

Attorneys Lee, Harrison Morse and Dunbar—entire array of the defendant's counsel—will call upon Mr. Pelletier to-morrow and argue that they are entitled to examine this evidence, as it would be unfair to the defendant if the government kept it concealed.

The evidence includes letters and papers found in Richeson's room in Cambridge by the police inspectors.

It became known to-day that the attorneys for the accused clergyman have practically settled upon their defence and that they will be ready for trial at the time appointed. No man charged with murder ever went to trial in this State with a stronger array of counsel.

Line of Defence of Minister.

Fighting for the life of the minister are John L. Lee and Beverly R. Harrison, prominent lawyers from Virginia; William A. Morse and Philip R. Dunbar, leading lawyers of Boston, and Congressman Roberts O. Harris, the last named in an advisory capacity.

While the attorneys are firm in their declaration that they will plead for the absolute freedom of Richeson and would not consent to any sort of compromise they have not disclosed what line of defence they will adopt. It is believed, however, that the defence will be along these lines:

Richeson and Avis Linnell were both broken off their engagement and she was satisfied to let him marry another. Richeson had no motive whatever, to kill the girl.

Richeson did not see her on the day the girl died and never gave her cyanide of potassium.

Avis Linnell procured the poison and took it either thinking it would be a beneficial her as a medicine or with suicidal intent.

Richeson bought poison with which to kill a dog and used it for that purpose. He would not be forced to admit to buy poison so publicly if he was going to murder any one.

The attorneys for the imprisoned preacher have abandoned any effort to have the date of trial deferred. They propose to stand by the decision made by Judge Sanderson on November 13, the day Mr. Richeson was arraigned in the Superior Criminal Court.

Attorney William A. Morse, of counsel for the defendant, declared with emphasis that there was absolutely no foundation whatever for the rumors circulated within the past few days to the effect that an agreement or compromise had been reached between counsel for the defence and counsel for the prosecution.

Conversation Report Absurd.

"I would be pleased to have the AMERICAN publish as coming from me," added Mr. Morse, "that there is not a grain of truth in the report that any settlement is to be attempted in this case. No idea is slower. It is the product of imagination. At no time has any suggestion been made of this character.

"You might state that Mr. Richeson's attorneys are now preparing for his trial. They conferred with Chief Justice Allen yesterday relative to have Mr. Lee, the attorney from Virginia, meet the chief justice and later Mr. Lee was introduced to District Attorney Pelletier.

"No demand for an extension of time was made at the conference yesterday, nor will any be made.

"We merely discussed details in preparation for the trial. For the same purpose we will confer with the District Attorney again on Thursday. There will be no arguments in court to-morrow."

Thirty-four Days to Trial.

"Inspection to-day of the indictment and the dockets at the clerk's office in the Superior Criminal Court showed that Mr Lee had not yet been formally entered as an attorney of record in Mr. Richeson's case," said the reporter. "The only attorneys' names that appeared on the records at the clerk's office are that of Philip R. Dunbar and your own. Will Mr. Lee be entered later?

"Oh, yes," replied Mr. Morse. "That is purely a technicality. He has been introduced to the Court and the District Attorney and will enter his name at the first convenient opportunity.

"On Thursday counsel for the defence and the government will confer with Judge Sanderson, preparatory to coming to the coming trial. Mr. Lee will be then given an opportunity to meet Judge Sanderson.

Immediately after giving the AMERICAN reporter this exclusive interview Mr. Morse hurried to the Courthouse and was closeted for a time with District Attorney Pelletier.

Even at the merry gladsome Christmas time a pirate is no gent. Take the case of the Treasure Ship and Old John. It wouldn't be fair to even hint at the treat which Artist Dirks has in store for the readers of the Sunday AMERICAN, but those little angel children, those model boys, those tender darlings, the Kaiserjammers, are once more smeared all over with glory.

MRS. TAFT NAMES 20 FAMOUS WOMEN FOR THE AMERICAN

MRS. WM. H. TAFT

Wife of the President includes in her list both women of history and those alive to-day.

MRS. TAFT'S LIST OF IMMORTALS

Mrs. William Howard Taft, wife of the President, has selected for the AMERICAN the following as being, in her belief, the greatest women living or dead:

Queen Victoria, Rosa Bonheur, Joan d'Arc, Maria Mitchell, Cecile Chaminade, Jane Austin, Charlotte Bronte, Frances Willard, Harriet R. Stowe, Florence Nightingale, Susan B. Anthony, George Eliot, Madame Roland, Elizabeth Barrett Browning, Lucretia Mott, Margaret Fuller, Queen Elizabeth, Dorothea Dix, Pocahontas, Mrs. Robert La Follette, wife of the senator from Wisconsin, makes the following selections:

Anthony, Elizabeth Cady Stanton, Olive Schreiner, Florence Nightingale, Madame Curie, Isabella of Spain, Queen Elizabeth, Elizabeth Barrett Browning, Harriet Beecher Stowe, Harriet Martineau, Mary Lyon, Nancy Hanks, Cornelia of Aarippa, Modjeska and Sophie Perovsky.

Andrew Carnegie is wrong on his choice of immortals. Boston women say so. They differ radically with him. But few agree with him. The first returns in the lists sent in by Boston women gave "Iron Master" Carnegie a very small percentage. Compare the list furnished by Mr. Carnegie with these:

Mrs. Maud W. Park, secretary of the Boston Equal Suffrage League:

"Homer, Socrates, Sappho, Julius Caesar, Charlemagne, St. Teresa, Dante, Columbus, Shakespeare, Queen Elizabeth, Napoleon, Mary Wollastone Craft, Sir Isaac Newton, Goethe, Beethoven, George Eliot, Florence Nightingale, Lincoln, Booker Washington, Jane Addams."

Rev. Percy C. Medes, of the Church of the High Life, Boston.

"The world is full of great men and women. Every man and woman is great. The great men on the list I am enclosing know the secret and mystery of greatness. By list is: Jesus of Nazareth, Plato, Lincoln, Dante, Milton, Emerson, Bunyan, Kant, Spencer, Goethe, Browning, Wagner, Franklin, Raphael, St. Francis, Darwin, Gladstone, Max Muller Buddha, St. John."

WORKMAN IS BURIED ALIVE IN GRAIN VAT

Thomas Dermey, fifty-two, of No. 4,376 Washington street, Roslindale, was buried alive in a flood of grain in a huge vat in the Highland Spring Brewery, Roxbury, this morning, when recovered, showed the effects of his desperate struggle to escape the grain, which poured into the vat from a great bin above, covering him inch by inch in the vat, until he was suffocated. Dermey was subject to fainting spells and related while standing on a chute which led into the vat. The falling grain aroused him, but the roar of the machinery drowned his cries for assistance.

SMOKE FATAL TO WOMAN IN BRIGHTON FIRE

Mrs. Annie Shanley, twenty-two, of No. 22 Mead street, Allston, was suffocated by smoke in a fire which burned out her apartment early to-day.

When the apparatus arrived smoke was pouring out of the windows. Members of Engine 34 rushed up two flights of stairs, broke in the door of the apartment and found Mrs. Shanley in bed.

She was carried through a window on to the piazza where Dr. John Casey tried to revive her but without success. The kitchen was burned out and part of the dining room damaged. The loss will be $200.

How the fire started is a mystery. Mr. Shanley, who is employed at the Watertown Arsenal, left the house about 6 o'clock. A half an hour later, James Butler, of No. 24 Mead street, saw smoke coming from the Shanley apartment. He tried the door but it was locked. He then notified Sergeant Magoet of the Brighton police. The rest is known.

Magoe and Butler returned to the house and with axe broke in the door just as the flames arrived. Groping their way through the rooms they came upon Mrs. Shanly. She was in her night clothes and from the position of her body she had apparently been awakened and had attempted to rise but was unable to reach the window.

Dr. Casey used artificial respiration for nearly half an hour. At one time it looked as if she would be able to regain consciousness. After she was pronounced dead Medical Examiner Leary was notified.

An Italian family on the lower floors on the second floor rushed to the street in their night clothes. The lower floors were damaged by water.

GARBAGE CONTRACT UP TO CITY COUNCIL

At a special meeting of the City Council to-day Mayor Fitzgerald submitted a communication from Commissioner of Public Works Rourke, who reported that he had accepted the bid of the Boston Sanitary and Development Company, a concern of New York men, for the ten-year $1,500,000 contract for the disposal of the city garbage and refuse. Commissioner Rourke stated that either of the two bids received would be advantageous to the city, but he mentioned the bid of the Boston Disposal Company, backed by Boston capital, as the other bid. The New York concern was awarded the contract because its bid was the lower. The Council is now up to the City Council, which will give a public hearing.

AMERICAN BANKERS OPPOSED TO WAR

LONDON, Dec. 13.—The Berlin correspondent of the Daily Mail in reaffirming his story of yesterday about German banks obtaining $75,000,000 in New York when there was danger of trouble with Great Britain, says in response to an indignant outburst from the German newspapers that the American syndicate refused to advance the money to Prussia without a binding assurance that Germany did not contemplate war.

Prominent society people attended the ceremony. The church altar was prettily decked with flowers. The bride was unattended save by two little pages.

A reception followed at the home of the bride's parents, at No. 3 East Ninety-second street. The pages attending the bride are Master William Burden, a son of Mr. and William A. Burden, and Master Tracy Dows, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Tracy Dows. Charles B. Stuart was best man.

TENEMENTS IN PERIL BY FIRE

Nearly a score of three-fat wooden apartment houses along Columbia road, Pleasant street and Cottage Ride, Dorchester, were threatened by fire early to-day. A one and a half-story wooden barn at the rear of No. 9 Cottage Ride, occupied as a stable and carpenter shop by Robert W. Miller, was destroyed, the loss being $1,000. "Stan" Miller's pet horse was suffocated.

More than one hundred persons rushed from their home when the flames threatened to spread to adjoining dwellings. The blaze was discovered by A. E. Wilson of No. 9 Cottage Ride. The entire barn was in flames when the firemen arrived and all attempts to rescue "Sam," the horse, proved futile.

The structure was doomed almost from the start and the firemen confined their efforts toward saving surrounding property. The cause of the fire is unknown.

A buggy, a large quantity of hay and grain and carpenters' tools were destroyed.

"And, girls! have you heard the latest word from Paris?" "Along the boulevards," writes Lady Duff-Gordon ("Lucile") in the Sunday AMERICAN, "one notices this Winter more striped fabrics than are usually seen at this season of the year, and many of them are very striking. Black and white is the combination most frequently used, but I have seen the striped patterns in all colors—many of them quite lurid and some of them almost grotesque." Lady Duff-Gordan writes exclusively for the Sunday AMERICAN. She is the foremost critor of fashions in the world.

$175,000 PAID FOR STOCK OF THE RUSTLERS

By W. S. FARNSWORTH

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—James E. Gaffney, right bower to Charles Murphy, the Tammany boss, has secured the Boston National League club.

The amount paid for the stock owned by former President Brush's estate was $175,000. Gaffney immediately appointed John M. Ward, the old shortstop of the Giants and now a lawyer, his city, president of the club. Ed Hanlon of Baltimore was appointed manager.

Gaffney and Mr. Ward will represent the Boston Club at the meeting of the National League to-day, when the deadlock on the club presidency may be broken.

Mr. Gaffney wanted Mr. Ward to run for president, but he decided to devote his time entirely to the Boston Club and consequently Mr. Gaffney will cast his vote for President Lynch. The sale was made through W. E. Woodward, attorney for Mrs. Russell, and Mr. Gaffney took over 945 of the 1,000 shares composing the capital stock.

Papers will be signed to-day and the club officially transferred to the new owners. It is understood that both Ward and Hanlon have invested money in the venture with Gaffney. The purchase of the club by these men gives it a standing in the baseball world. All three are men who can be banked upon to give Boston fans a winning team if possible.

Surely there is enough money interested to secure a first division team, on account of the fine report came out that these men had secured for Boston, it was impossible early this morning to get a rest line on what is to be done in the Hub.

The most gigantic upheaval in the history of sports threatens to disintegrate the great baseball trust organization into the chaos that marked its existence before the American and National leagues ten years ago.

Johnson Issues Ultimatum.

Decided to work side by side, Ban Johnson, president of the American League, issued this ultimatum at the annual meeting of the younger major league.

He warned the National League that hereafter the circuit would refuse to have anything whatever of friendliness towards its rival, that he would not longer have faith in the integrity of the National Commission, and that if there was any baiter interference by the latter organization it would be simply in pursuance of the American League's determination to guard its territorial and property rights.

The American League likewise made conditions in defence of peace as the matter of conducting world's series games in the future. This resolution, presented by Frank J. Farrell, owner of the New York Highlanders, and seconded by Charles Comiskey of Chicago, was despatched at once to Chairman August Herriman of the National, who, with other National League magnates was considering the preliminary business of the old major league's annual meeting.

Not Aware of Action Taken.

The messenger did not arrive at the Waldorf until after the National League had adjourned for the day in complete ignorance of the rupture of amicable relations between the two leagues. Most of the National League people, in the morning evening dress, journeyed over to the Hotel Astor, where the world's champion Athletics were honoring their friends and the press. The American League magnates, one and all, discussed the resolution openly and blandly.

"We will stick by our president through thick and thin," declared William Lawrence, owner of the Cleveland Naps. "Detroit Tigers and multimillionaire. "If some of these irresponsible National League gamblers think they are going to run our organization they are much mistaken."

Ex-Governor Stanley voiced the sentiment of every American League club owner. Ban Johnson's henchmen, as usual, are prepared to stick behind him, and right now Ban Johnson is a pretty sore gentleman towards everything connected with the National League.

The big split came when Johnson's colleagues refused to aid him in pushing the investigation into the clandestine sale of tick-

THREE-YEAR-OLD GIRL MAY DIE OF BURNS

HAVERHILL, Dec. 13.—Left alone by her mother in the kitchen of her home at No. 10 Bradford avenue, Bradford District, three-year-old Dorothy Graham, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Graham, poked a piece of paper into the red hot stove and was so severely burned that she will probably die. Persons residing in the upper portion of his house heard the child's screams and rushed to the rescue, finding the baby in a rug and unsmothered a doctor.

MALDEN MAN TRIES TO END LIFE WITH GAS

Edward Moylan, thirty, who is thought to live in Malden, was found overcome by gas early to-day in a room he had hired at the Hotel Benedict at No. 20 Common street, near Tremont. He was discovered on the floor with one end of a rubber tube in his mouth by Robert A. Wanders, the landlord. Moylan was taken to the City Hospital. It is thought he will recover.

ETHEL CONRAD, WHO RESUMES STORY OF STOKES SHOOTING

A feature of Miss Conrad's testimony was that she figured in another bit of gun play several months before the Stokes incident.

CONRAD GIRL IN MORE GUN PLAY

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—The promise of Ethel Conrad, who is on trial with Lillian Graham, charged with shooting W. E. D. Stokes, to tell in court to-day a statement which followed some gun play in which she and a man figured last year, added new interest to the case.

Buckner questioned the witness closely as to her life, particularly as to a visit she made in 1910 to Plattsburg, N. Y., where she accepted, she said, the home of a friend, "Mr. Parker," who was away for the Summer.

While there she admitted that she had drawn a revolver upon a man named Louis Miller, with whom she had been on an automobile ride. She forced him to write a statement, she said, of what took place on the automobile trip, and then told a sheriff that she had attempted to kill a man and wanted to be arrested.

Miss Conrad said she first met Miss Graham in April. The girl told of her friend's attempt soon after to commit suicide.

"I read the letter she wrote," said the witness, "and found that Mr. Stokes ought to have about it so I took it to him."

She narrated in detail how she called at Stokes's hotel and held the attempted suicide letter for ransom. "I gave you $200 for her expenses. I'd give you more only she might commit suicide on the way over and the money would be lost."

"Before I left, Mr. Stokes put his hand on my shoulder and said, 'I'm doing all this for you, because you are young and beautiful. By the way, what is your business?' I told him I was one of the businesses what I did, and he was so familiar, pulled me to his knee. I told him that I was afraid to tell him I was an actress, but I told him I was an illustrator. Then he promised to get me a position."

The following day Miss Conrad met Stokes, she said. "Has that party gone?" asked Stokes.

"I was sorry I had called him then," she said. "That I told him she had. He asked me if I had those letters he had asked me to get from Miss Graham and when I told him I had he said he was going up for them. He got very angry when I told him not to because I didn't want him to see Lillian, but he said he was coming anyway."

Corroborates Her Chum.

Miss Conrad then gave her story of Stokes's visit on the night he was shot. "When he first saw Lillian," she went on, "he called me a liar and a lot of other things."

She corroborated Miss Graham's story regarding Stokes's alleged attack, the struggle for the revolver and the wounding of Stokes. "I struck at the revolver in Mr. Stokes's hand with a chair and it went off. Then I got my own pistol and cried, 'Drop that or I'll shoot.' He dived again and the revolver I held went off."

ARRAIGN BRIBERY SUSPECTS

NEW BEDFORD, Dec. 13.—Three men were arraigned in court here before Justice Milliken, charged with conspiracy to bribe voters at the recent State election. Five more arrests are expected to-day.

The accused men, against whom the finger of the law points as the result of a bribery scandal, are: Edward Lawton, a saloonkeeper; Antone Sylvia and William B. Foster.

The arrests of the trio literally kept New Bedford awake last night. Foster was not take in custody until midnight. The other two were arrested at their homes about 3 o'clock.

It is declared that the arrests of these men is only the beginning; that there are two men "higher up" for whom the State Police are looking. The official investigators, led by David I. Walsh, who ran for Lieutenant-Governor with Governor Foss, say that vote buying has been so easy and so prevalent here that for the past quarter of a century 2,000 to 4,000 men have been purchasable every year at from $1 to $5 per ballot.

State detectives to-day are looking in Philadelphia for William Gordon Lewis, alias "Lanky Bob," as a witness in the cases now pending. It is charged that certain men conspired to buy his vote. He is mentioned in the warrants against the three men in court to-day.

Witness at Former Inquiry.

The police to-day remarked that it was rather strange that this man had disappeared, when he was a witness at the inquiry three years ago, when the testimony on vote bribery was kept secret and only recently turned over to the State officials upon the demand of Governor Foss.

Though Governor Foss was re-elected this year, Mr. Walsh losing by a small margin, it is significant that while New Bedford went for Foss by a majority of 1,153 two years ago, this Fall Frothingham carried the city by 1,400.

Mr. Walsh to-day made the following statement regarding the situation:

"The result of the investigation has only just begun. The work heretofore has been confined to accumulation and sifting of evidence. It is to-day a statement which followed some gun play in which she and a man figured last year, added new interest to the case.

Buckner questioned the witness closely as to her life, particularly as to a visit she made in 1910 to Plattsburg, N. Y., where she accepted, she said, the home of a friend, "Mr. Parker," who was away for the Summer.

Wounded Upon Stokes.

Miss Conrad then gave her story of the shooting of Stokes. "I struck at the revolver with a chair and it went off. Then I got my own pistol and cried, 'Drop that or I'll shoot.' He dived again and the revolver I held went off."

Walsh Hints Disclosures.

"At this time, I desire to repeat what I said before, that while evidence may show vote-buying was practiced in the interest of the Republican candidates in the last State election, no evidence has come to my attention, and I personally do not believe that the Republican candidates or State officials outside of New Bedford knew of it or in any way sanctioned it. In my opinion, local influence alone was responsible."

It is said that the arrests of the three men certain members of the Republican State machine were rather restless to-day. For years there have been no end of whispered hint that they could be caught "with the goods," but they themselves are fearing arrest. One is a millionaire, and another a prominent business man.

Deputy Superintendents Dunn and Daly were assisted in the taking of the prisoners by Inspector Almond and sergeant McKenna, who have been working on the case in court to-day to assist in the prosecution.

Just before 8 o'clock last night the officers called at the home of Court Clerk Frank Vera, presented sworn statements of men who are expected to be witnesses and secured warrants. Then they went down Fifth street to No. 105, where "Pomp" Lawton lives. He was taken in charge about route to police quarters and gave bail, Clerk Vera being a bail commissioner. From the station house he went to his home again.

It is charged that Lawton, in his saloon, conducted a regular clearing house for election bribery.

After the arrest of Lawton the officers went to the home of Sylvia and took him into custody. Foster was found at his home all about midnight.

It is said that there are scores of affidavits in the hands of Mr. Walsh in which men who have been bought and sold confessed and told the names of the men who solicited their votes. Immediately after the polls had closed.

Mr. Walsh personally conducted the prosecution of the three men before Judge Milliken in the police court here, the evidence being only started. It was evident from the facts already elicited that there may be wholesale arrests.

It is understood that the authorities that the

6-DAY RIDERS BEHIND RECORD

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—Almost eight miles behind the record, the fourteen teams in the six-day bicycle race at Madison Square Garden were plugging doggedly along in their heart-breaking grind to-day and the end of the fifth fifty hour found Lorenz heading the procession. The twelve leading teams had covered 1,102 miles and five laps at that time, while the two trailers were one lap behind. The record for the time is 1,110 miles flat, made by Root and Fogler in 1909.

The Risk of Losing the Bargain

WE refer to the 165.00 Persian Lamb Coat which was sold Monday morning a few hours after it was placed on sale. It is mentioned here because it illustrates one of the fundamental principles of the Tunnel Bargain Basement.

By Waiting—Under the Automatic Price Reduction System—25%, 50% or even 75% MORE could have been saved, IF the Coat had not been sold, BUT THE FIRST PRICE WAS SO EXTRAORDINARY that it did not remain to be reduced.

What Senators Say.

Of forty-seven Senators seen to-day twenty-two declared for reciprocity, fifteen were non-committal until they know the form a specific bill will take and ten expressed opposition. Their views follow:

Williams, Mississippi (D)—I am certainly in favor of anything that will lower tariff and thereby reduce the cost of living. A properly framed reciprocity measure ought to accomplish that purpose. Of course I am for reciprocity with Norway or any other country that will give wood pulp free of duty.

Newlands, Nevada (D)—I always have been opposed to reciprocity treaties as a general thing, but I am against bargaining by diplomats, believing every nation's revenue system and fiscal policy should stand without interference from the outside. I am for reciprocity with Canada.

Bradley, Kentucky (R)—I am not all prepared to give an opinion.

Percy, Mississippi (D)—I am in favor of the most liberal reciprocity treaties possible with the South American countries. That feature of our relations with the other countries of this hemisphere has been woefully neglected, and we are very lardy as it is in giving it attention.

Culberson, Texas (D)—I am against any reciprocity proposition which would interfere with tariff reduction, and if a question whether there would be such interference until we can see in just what form the proposition is to come.

"Step in Right Direction.

Swanson, Virginia (D)—I am not prepared to say anything except that everybody in the United States should be for what will reduce the cost of things we are obliged to buy of other countries and therefore reciprocity seems to be the step in the direction.

Tillman, North Carolina (D)—If we can have real reciprocity in the things the South American countries have that we want, then I am for it.

Ryan, Florida (D)—I think the idea of reciprocity with the South American countries is right. It commended itself to me and I believe to have minds in this country and in South America capable of working out the problem for our mutual benefit.

Bankhead, Alabama (D)—I am for reciprocity with the South American countries with the proper safeguards for our interests. The question has not come to Congress in any concrete form, but it appears to me forcibly as looking to a reduction of living expenses.

Rayner, Maryland (D)—The question never has been presented to us in any form and I cannot say at this time what I should think about it. Personnel. Ohio (D)—I favor reciprocity.

"Would Be Desirable."

Lea, Tennessee (D)—If we could get rid of tariff inquities in no other way I would favor reciprocity with our South American neighbors. Otherwise not.

Clark, Arkansas (D)—Much of course would depend upon the structure of the measure carrying reciprocity. In the absence of a general tariff reduction on Democratic lines reciprocity with South American countries would be desirable.

Overman, North Carolina (D)—I am glad for a reduction of the tariff so that the whole system shall be overturned on its five and we free principles. Reciprocity with the South American is my opinion would, with the completed Panama canal, vastly augment the trade of the two ends of the hemisphere.

Nelson, Minnesota (R)—That is an academic question.

Taylor, Tennessee (D)—I am for reciprocity in general. I am always for reciprocity.

Burton, Ohio (D)—I do not care to talk about reciprocity until I see some specific measure.

Martine, New Jersey (D)—I favor any measure that will afford broad and liberal combination with my fellowmen. I am an absolute tariff reformer.

Swedish-Hungary, Germany, Holland, Norway, Sweden, has asked that pulp, paper and wood may be admitted under the most favored nation clause of her treaty with this country to enter the United States free of duty under the same conditions that Canadian pulp and paper are given free of duty. The question of granting this privilege to the foreign countries that have applied to be included soon by President Taft after he has had a full report on the subject in the treasury and State department.

Representative Underwood, Democratic leader of the House and chairman of Ways and Means committee, which will pass on any reciprocity bill —I am in favor of extending our trade with South America by any possible proper methods. The question of reciprocity with Germany, Sweden and Norway, so far as it relates to wood pulp is a matter for decision by the President.

SEEK RICHESON CASE EVIDENCE

Exactly thirty-four days remain before Mr. Richeson is placed on trial for his life by a jury of his peers. His attorneys had sixty-three days in which to perfect their case from his arraignment on November 13 until January 15, the trial date. Twenty-nine of this number have passed.

It is contended by lawyers that if counsel for Mr. Richeson appeared before the court again and showed good cause why a later date should be fixed their request in all probability would be granted, but they have decided on the other course.

It is evident that they have their case pretty well in hand already, and that an extension of time would not materially aid them. Therefore, an attempt to change the ruling of the court might be looked upon as futile, in view of the emphatic stand taken by the District Attorney and the court when Mr. Richeson entered a plea of not guilty.

That conviction insures one of the most interesting legal fights that ever took place in Boston will have followed the remarkable tragedy will have no difficulty in recalling much of Hawthorne's masterpiece of fiction, "The Scarlet Letter," in which the leading character is a clergyman.

Should Richeson, the tall, slender, dark-visaged pastor, take the witness stand and tell his story, it would be a dramatic situation that would be without precedent for absorbing interest. Even if he is not allowed to go on the stand, it would seem certain that he would address the jury at the conclusion of the evidence in the impassioned plea such as he never made from the pulpit.

District Attorney Pelletier, it was said to-day, would conduct the prosecution of Richeson in person. It is possible that Attorney General Swift will take a hand in the matter, giving the District Attorney any help that is in his power.

It will be recalled that when Charles L. Tucker was placed on trial on the charge of aiding Lizzie Borden Attorney-General Herbert Parker did the bulk of the work of prosecution. Judge Sanderson was then District Attorney of Middlesex county and assisted Mr. Parker. But Mr. Swift takes part in this case it will be to lend assistance to Mr. Pelletier. Mr. Swift took part in the prosecution of Bertram G. Spencer recently found guilty of murder in the first degree at Springfield.

Disappointment for Public.

When Richeson is placed on trial there is going to be one disappointment for the public in that there will be no room for people not actually connected with the case in any of the courtrooms in the County Courthouse.

The trial would probably take place in Part 1 of the Superior Criminal Court. This is a small room and only seats 112 keys, members of the jury and newspaper men and artists will be required to be filled.

It is expected that there will be more newspaper men from the outside at this trial than at any previous trial of any kind in this State. The Richeson case has interested nation-wide interest. A Boston man who recently returned from Kansas City said that when the word "Boston" was pronounced in the West some one would remark:

"Oh, yes, that's the city where that preacher Richeson is on trial for the murder of a girl. How's that case coming out?"

The public will be compelled to rely entirely on the newspapers for their news of the trial, which it is expected will last a month at the very least.

Many Women Witnesses.

There will be hardly a witness whose testimony will not be followed with the most intense interest. Many of the witnesses will be women and some of the most important of them are young women connected with the Young Women's Christian Association, where Avis Linnell was living when she took the fatal draught of poison, including Miss Emma Gary.

It is expected that the prosecution will put on the stand women to whom Richeson paid court with the idea of showing that he was very prodigal in his attentions to none the less, of deep interest will be the witnesses for the defence—men and women both, who are loyal to the clergyman. Some of these witnesses will be members of the Cambridge Baptist Immanuel Church, of which Richeson was pastor up to a short time ago when his resignation was accepted.

Richeson is said to take his imprisonment with a rare philosophy. He spends his time in reading and writing. The latter is his great comfort, especially at this fall say, and he is frequently heard repeating the Twenty-third Psalm, which begins: "The Lord is my Shepherd; I shall not want."

MORE BRIBERY ARRESTS COMING

vote buying clique will resort to desperate means to save itself, and detectives are watching every witness needed in the trials to come to prevent them from being bribed or smuggled out of town.

If convicted, the men now accused may get a year in jail.

It is charged that Lawton, assisted by Sylvia and others, stood at the voting place in Precinct 13, Ward 5, on election day and offered $2 for every voter agreeing to cast his ballot for Frothingham and Lee. Some men were promised $2 for the vote alone. Others were paid $5 upon the understanding that they would vote for Frothingham and Lee and in addition, do some work about the polls. The clerk consisted of passing out cards that bore the pictures and names of Frothingham and Lee.

This distribution of cards, which was freely indulged in at various precincts on election day, is a violation of the election laws, which prohibit the passing out of literature at a voting place.

Lawton, it is alleged, had the cards in his possession and distributed them to men in his employ.

Sylvia, it is charged, brought voters to the polls and introduced them to Lawton, who "booked" them.

It is also charged that the men were free lunch at Lawton's saloon on Bennet street, Thursday and Friday nights following the election. Some of the bills Lawton displayed a huge roll of bills, as he paid out $2 to each of the bribed voters. Some of the men who have revealed the corruption methods during the past week were purchased in every State and condition for years.

The brewery interests for years have taken an active part in the politics of Mayor. For many years, there has been intense rivalry between the brewery interests for the control of politics in the city.

It is well known, that for years it has been the custom for the brewers to levy a tribute of $300 of each open the liquor dealers of the city. Some are now of the strange that the license fee of New Bedford is the lowest of any city in the Commonwealth.

At the bribery inquest three years ago the testimony of ninety-four witnesses was heard. The lawyers of the prosecution were not allowed in the court room at the time their witnesses were examined.

They were obliged to turn over their evidence and questions to District Attorney Swift, now Attorney-General, who conducted the case.

Numerous attempts were made by officials to secure a copy of the evidence but without success. Finally the evidence was requested from Judge Milliken by the State police. It became necessary for Governor Foss to write a personal letter to Judge Milliken in order that the State police might have access to the records.

Attorney-General Swift, however, at the request of the State police, transmitted his copy of the evidence to Lieut. Proctor. The latter turned the evidence over to Mr. Swift, with the request that he receive him a legal opinion on the course to be followed.

It has been the custom to "book" men who have been paid from $2 to $5 and from $2 to $2 have been made for their votes. In fact, city officials have been known in line to be "paid off." The custom was possible in such an extent that the public conscience became blunted and men saw no wrong in selling their votes.

MEET TO-NIGHT ON PASSPORTS

A mass meeting to protest against Russia's refusal to honor passports of American Jews will be held in Faneuil Hall to-night. Mayor Fitzgerald, Governor Foss, Lieutenant Frothingham and several other public officials will speak.

Mayor Fitzgerald, who has assisted in the arrangements, invited all the Mayors of Greater Boston to attend. The Mayor will preside. The following have also been invited: Alfred F. Treadway, President of the State Senate; Joseph Walker, Speaker of the House; President A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard, Bishop William Lawrence, Bishop Joseph G. Anderson, the Rev. Charles G. Dole and Louis D. Brandies.

MRS. DURLAND GETS INSURANCE

The $15,000 insurance on the life of Kellogg Durland has been paid to his widow, it was announced at the offices of the Equitable Life Assurance Society in New York.

Mr. Durland, a settlement worker and author, died suddenly in Boston on the night of November 18. An autopsy showed death resulted from cyanide of potassium.

According to the widow, Mr. Durland rushed about the train where she had taken a reservation for New York and after threatening her life, called for a glass of water and then collapsed.

The policy, in Mrs. Durland's name, carried the usual suicide clause, making it incontestable after the lapse of one year and seven months. It was taken out April 10, 1910. The premiums were paid by Mrs. Durland semi-annually. The last payment, which became due October 6 was not paid until November 10, or at the end of the thirty days of grace. Eight days later Durland died.

The payment of the insurance by the Equitable followed a careful investigation of the case in Boston and New York.

WOMAN WRITES MEN'S DECALOGUE

MARCHESA DE BAGLIONI DE TREVANO.

Marchesa di Baglioni, Trevano of Perugia, who is indignant at Brockton pastor for writing decalogue for women.

Titled Italian Arraigns Brockton Pastor and His Commandments for Fair Sex.

The Marchesa di Baglioni Trevano of Perugia, Italy, who has been in New York for the last two years, has come to Boston with a scathing message for married men. Her attention has been called to a set of Ten Commandments formulated by the Rev. Albert Marion Hyde, pastor of the Porter Congregational Church, Brockton, who lays down some rules for women to follow.

The following is one of the commandments: "Thou shalt not be a slave to fashion, making thyself a spectacle for the bystanders on the streets, furnishing jokes for funny papers and causing thy husband, father and son to blush for you. It is better to be out of fashion than out of sense."

The Marchesa has come to Boston to join Signora Casanova'nt the Lenox. The Signora created a sensation recently by declaring that all Boston women were frumps. When the attention of the two women was called to the Reverend Mr. Hyde's ten commandments they went into shrieks of merriment over the presumption of mere man to dictate to the fair sex and to lay down other commandments than those prescribed by the Bible.

"Nothing like that would be allowed in Italy," said the Marchesa. "Such things are reserved by our clergy for the confessional, and the advice given by a priest to his parishioners is kept sacred and not vaunted forth in the press before all eyes. It would be considered humiliating for one man to lay down a set of rules for all women and no foreigner, save only Schopenhauer, whose hatred for women has been so widely discussed, would ever have essayed such a rule of conduct." Signora Casanova was highly red.

"What a terrible creature the American wife must be," she said, "and what a paragon of manly virtues her husband. Really, I had believed that our husbands were all brothers under their skins, and that the faults and virtues of the American husband were pretty nearly identical with those of our Italian and of other European husbands. Are the men so perfect that the pastor of this American church considers it unnecessary to lay down a companion set of rules of conduct for their use—or doesn't he dare?"

"Dwellings differ in our respective countries, of course," the Marchesa interposed, "but without a doubt human nature is pretty much the same the world over. None of us is perfect and each one of us is apt to criticize everyone else and to find faults that we suppose we are free from. But of course every wife, the world over, in her heart of hearts, can formulate many a commandment which men would be the better for living up to.

"Perhaps we may not be perfect wives, but our own husbands are not perfect, as a class. This does not apply to Italy in particular, but to all European countries."

Signora Casanova and the Marchesa di Baglioni then consented to formulate a set of ten commandments for men to retaliate to the Rev. Mr. Hyde of Brockton. They set to work with a great deal of delight.

Signora Casanova and the Marchesa di Baglioni are receiving many courtesies in Boston. Both will go to New York shortly, where Signor Casanova is expected for the holidays. Both women speak English fluently, with a charming accent. A conclusion the Marchesa said:

"We women have enough to do in keeping the original Ten Commandments without trying to model ourselves along the line laid down by that American clergyman of yours. It is rather far fetched for him to presume that all women err in the fashion he seeks to enforce.

"Perhaps he got his ideas from those funny papers of which he speak in his commandments," she concluded, laughingly.

JUDGE RESERVES PITONOF DECISION

ATTLEBORO, Dec. 12.—Judge Byram has reserved decision in the Rhode vs. Pitonof case in the District Court. It developed during the hearing that Benjamin D. Rhodes of Revere met Miss Rose Pitonof, the girl swimmer, at Revere Beach, where Rhodes was employed and where Miss Pitonof gave exhibitions of fancy swimming. It is claimed that he was engaged as manager for Miss Pitonof when she started on her tour. He said he taught her to walk on her hands in the water and several other feats that she used later in her vaudeville performance. When she learned these, Rhodes claimed, he was discharged. Accordingly he brought suit for $30 against Eli Pitonof, father of the girl.

DEDHAM AUTO VICTIM STILL UNIDENTIFIED

The body of a man, evidently an Italian, who was fatally injured by an automobile, owned and operated by Harry Hartley of Brookline, who died at the Massachusetts General Hospital, is at the North Grove street morgue still unidentified. The accident happened on Washington street near Williams street, Dedham. Mr. Hartley was on the way from Boston to Providence. On Washington street near the railroad bridge an electric car had stopped as the auto was passing and the victim of the accident, in gole ground the car to cross the street, stepped into the path of the auto too quickly to escape.

WRIGHTS LOSE SUIT TO GRAHAME-WHITE

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—Claude Grahame-White, the English aviator, has won the suit instituted against him by the Wright Company for damages resulting from alleged infringements of its patents. Judge Hand in the United States Circuit Court handed down a decision restraining the Wrights from asking for an accounting from the aviator. After aviation meets at which nearly $100,000 was paid to Grahame-White as prize money and for services the Wrights brought suit alleging that the Farman and Blerlot aeroplanes which he used were infringements on their patents.

¶ Should a girl who only earns $3 a week be glad to sell herself for $100,000? Professor Simon E. Patten of the University of Pennsylvania, writing in next Sunday's AMERICAN on "Why One Marriage in Every Nine Ends in Divorce," finds it hard to believe her. You will want next Sunday's AMERICAN for the "Divorce" article by Professor Patten, if for nothing else.

10 COMMANDMENTS FOR MEN, AS FRAMED BY ITALIAN WOMEN

1. Thou shalt not marry for a dot alone.

2. Thou shalt not expect to control thy wife's private fortune, even though the laws of the State should elect that you fritter away the dot she hast brought thee.

3. Thou shalt not waste the substance of thy income upon gambling at thy club and deny thy wife the solace of the 5 o'clock tea.

4. Thou shalt not snale upon the pretty parlormaid and frown upon thine own spouse. For she hast brought to thee a generous marriage portion.

5. Thou shalt not spend all thy income upon riotous motors and expect thy wife to drive behind a moth-eaten pair of broken-down cab horses when she goes forth to pay the calls incumbent upon her to keep up thy social position.

6. Thou shalt not disappear for many days leaving no address; neither shalt thou depart for the Riviera in state, only to be discovered losing all thy shekels in play at the house of a forbidden friend.

7. Thou shalt not sit in thy club window and make eyes at every passing female or send gossip about the women of thine own city in the presence of their kinsmen.

8. Thou shalt not forget thy children and thy wife for the fascinations of the cabaret singer nor waste thy substance in riotous suppers at thy wife's expense.

9. Thou shalt not worship other women before me.

10. Thou shalt not forget to honor my father and mother as I honor thine.—Ten commandments formulated by Signora Casanova and Marchesa di Baglioni Trevano.

Our Photo Studio

We beg to inform those desiring Xmas Photos not to wait for clear days, but to come any day convenient, rain or shine. In our modern equipped studio, we are prepared to make sittings in the darkest weather as well as on the finest days.

Holiday Photographs

Are held in as high esteem as ever, and the good American custom of giving pictures at Xmastide is still extremely popular.

We offer a $6 photo, including a convex portrait, for . . 2.65

We will make one dozen of the newest type of photos, a 6x9 platinotype, in up-to-date deckle edge folio; also presenting each customer with one of our famous convex portraits. This is an offer that we believe has never been equalled.

Here are a few Xmas suggestions that are out of the ordinary: For instance, give your married sister and brother a small portrait in colors of their baby. We copy from any picture, and make a beautiful water color, with frame, for $5.00, or a large crayon and frame of your father or mother for $5.00. We have dainty, small miniatures in water color and frame for $1.00, and many other suggestions, if you call at our studio.

All sittings for photographs taken this week will positively be finished for Christmas.

ALIENISTS MAY STUDY SANDFORD

SHILOH, Me., Dec. 13.—Attorney Coolidge, counsel for Frank W. Sandford, the Holy Ghost and Us leader now out on bail after conviction for manslaughter, is authority for the statement that alienists may visit Shiloh to study Sanford's mental condition. The latter has not yet signified he would allow such a proceeding.

It was intimated that the government might take this action, but no official denial was made from Portland.

Judge Hale has given Sandford until December 18 to prepare his business and private affairs before he announces what sentence will be imposed.

It is a general belief that Sanford will be sentenced to Aldine. If he is declared insane he will be transferred to the Federal Hospital at Washington.

S. W. Carpenter, a former member of Shiloh Colony, whose wife and children still attend the faith, told his experiences while connected with the organization. This story explains how Sandford and his leaders conduct the colony.

Turned In All He Had.

"I was living in Kansas," he said, "when a former neighbor of mine named Matchett, who had become a Shiloh missionary, came to my home and told us about Shiloh. He held meetings in the neighborhood, and among the things he said was that the Lord must soon put what every one had at Shiloh was paid. With my family I went to Shiloh and turned in all my worldly possessions to Sandford and the leaders.

"The very first meeting I attended at Shiloh one of the ministers began to pray for money to pay the interest on the mortgage. I began then and there to see that I had been deceived, and so kept my eyes open. I was at Shiloh more than six months. I saw Sandford bring a man out of the field and afterward he claimed that he had brought him to life.

Had Little To Eat.

"While I was there we had very little to eat and at one time the ration consisted of a single carrot apiece. Some of the families had no food and this carrot had to be eaten raw.

"The trouble or the main trouble, at Shiloh is the many women in the town. The ministers are all exempt from work, and these few can do work says to divide what they raise among all the others. This division and sub-division when the store of farm products is low, makes it extremely hard on the children, especially. They, with the animals, are the worst sufferers.

"When anyone receives any money at Shiloh, one-tenth is for the ministers and if the rest is needed it is taken. When the Kingdom was purchased, there was a prayer meeting to raise the money. Each one called upon to give all he had.

"Mr. wife gave what pennies she had and they even took some stamps belonging to one of my girls. One woman gave a bracelet and another a ring. These were all the possessions they had left in the world.

Couldn't Read Papers.

"No one at Shiloh is allowed to read the papers. I went to a neighbor, not a Shilohite, one day to look at his paper and they held a prayer meeting after this event to pray the devil out of me.

"A percentage of all that is raised goes into the general store and after what has been kept by those who raised the vegetables and divided many times over in the bargain has been eaten up the general store furnishes the food for another season arrives.

"Along in January the improvident colonists are drawing from the store, and before the next season's crops are harvested there is much want and suffering. Sandford in connection with the selectmen met a month, during which time no work is done. There is only one row of houses and the children get along on condensed milk when they can get it.

"Those who do work are in very small proportion to the whole, and after what they raise has been divided among the lazy ones little is left. I have spoken of the animals. When the days are rainy or stormy, geese are sold to fill the stomachs of the animals and no food is given them. No animal ever receives over two meals a day. The principal diet at Shiloh is meat, water and salt, cooked in different ways."

MAYOR TO PROTEST LISTING OF STOCK

Mayor John F. Fitzgerald spoke to 125 members of the Brockton Chamber of Commerce at the Hotel Belmont, Brockton, at teh biggest meeting ever held by that organization. He referred to the Eastern Steamship consolidation, where the capital stock was increased from $2,000,000 to $6,000,000. "I am going to protest to-day," he said, "to the Boston Stock Exchange against the listing of this stock. As a result of the increase in capitalization the stock has jumped from 84 a 120."

Rheumatism Advice

Prominent Doctor's Best Prescription Easily Mixed at Home.

"From your druggist get one ounce of Toris compound (in original sealed package) and one ounce of syrup of Sarsaparilla compound. Take these two ingredients home and put them into a half pint of good whiskey. Shake the bottle and take a tablespoonful before each meal and at bed-time." This is said to be the quickest and best remedy known to the medical profession for rheumatism and back-ache. Good results come after the first dose. If your druggist does not have Toris compound in stock he will get it for you in a few hours from his wholesale house. Don't be influenced to take a patent medicine instead of this. Insist on having the genuine Toris compound in the original one ounce, sealed, yellow package. Hundreds of the worst cases were cured here by this prescription last winter.

LAST HYDE PARK TOWN MEETING

Hyde Park bids its old town government a formal if not a food farewell tonight when the town fathers and everybody else who has any interest in the past town meeting. So to-day the town is feeling just like a young fellow arriving at his twenty-first birthday. After to-night—well, there won't be much occasion to talk about Hyde Park any more except as the new Ward 26 of Boston.

Since the town annexed itself unto Boston, the citizens have been lying in wait for the time to come when they could bury the "town" away for all time. So they're going to sit in to-night, to take up routine town matters, settle them for good and all and then adjourn till the sweet bye-and-bye.

The people of Hyde Park are keenly interested in to-night's session, not that they look for any untoward or exciting action, but just because it is the last say-so the town will ever utter on its books of record. Then too, there comes up the matter of town officials, who are to say whether they live to their jobs. First of all, Chairman James D. Grant of the Board of Selectmen. He hasn't been at all jubilant as he was staunch against annexation and lost. The Selectmen go out of business.

Probably officials employed in Norfolk County also lose, because they will have no more elsewhere. Hyde Park pays into Norfolk County under the annexation act.

Besides Chairman Grant the Selectmen who "get through" are the Rev. Guy C. Lemmell, John Alden, Robert B. Wells and Benjamin C. Clough. Hyde Park has had just forty-two years of town history.

New Way to Banish All Hairy Growths

(Modes of Today.)

Many people will be interested in the new and simple manner in which hair or fuzz is removed from the face, neck or arms. This consists of making a paste with ordinary powdered delatone and water and applying to hairy surface. After two or three minutes rub it off, wash the skin and every hair has vanished.

Druggists will charge you a dollar for an original one-ounce package of delatone, but it is well worth its cost, as it is both painless and harmless and seldom requires the second application to remove even a stubborn growth.

CALLAHAN SERVICE

ASK FOR THIS BRAND AT YOUR FAVORITE BAR OR BOTTLE STORE. WE SUPPLY ALL DEALERS.

OUR MAIL ORDER DEPARTMENT has the entire front of the fourth floor of our building. In this room, flooded with light, experienced clerks preside over as fine a mail order system as can be worked out. There is no confusion here, no piling up of orders, no pushing of mail matter into a corner, no interference from other departments. This room and the people in it have nothing to do but take care of orders that come through the mail. That's a business in itself and it gets the attention at our hands that it deserves. The man who buys from us through the mail gets just as careful attention as it is possible to obtain through over-the-counter buying, and every sale carries with it an agreement to refund all the money paid for goods that may be returned because they have not met the most exacting demands in the mind of the purchaser.

Probably you have observed that in selling CALLAHAN "A" WHISKEY, our leading medium-priced mail-order, phone-order and counter-sale brand, we guarantee the money back if the goods do not delight the man who buys.

Well, that guarantee stands behind the entire line of 49 different brands of whiskies and all the brands of rum, gin, brandy and wine in stock, than which there is none more comprehensive in New England.

So look to us for your CHRISTMAS requirements. Name the price you are willing to pay and you may trust to us for big value. We have everything a fully equipped wholesale liquor establishment ought to carry, and our prices are right. If you are sceptical, give us a trial order on CALLAHAN "A." The price for this New England favorite is $3.00 for 4 quarts, $4.50 for 6 quarts, $6.00 for 8 quarts. We prepay express charges on all New England orders for 6 quarts or more of this brand. This pure, palatable, smooth whiskey will show you what CALLAHAN QUALITY is and the promptness with which we fill your order will show what the possibilities are in getting what you want when you want it, no matter where you may live.

RESENT SHAW'S TALK ON IRISH

Boston men of Irish descent are indignant at the attack made by George Bernard Shaw on the people of Irish birth in this country. Here are some of the remarks of Boston men on what Mr. Shaw said:

JOSEPH H. O'NEILL, former member of Congress:

The United States Irish are not Irish if he is.

W. T. C. FITZGERALD, Registrar of Deeds:

It is probable that Mr. Shaw knows less about the American Irish, and particularly those of them who have criticised the Irish plays, than the said critics know about conditions in Ireland, because many of them, particularly in Boston, who have criticised these plays, were educated in Ireland and had lived there until after they attained manhood. It is my opinion that many irishmen in Boston disliked the Irish plays. They approved of the talent and qualification of the players, but were disappointed in the subject matter, which was the vehicle of their Irish talents.

Mr. Shaw is probably in great error when he says that the Kellys, the Burkes and the Keanes of this country are not qualified to pass on dramatic productions, and certainly shows an abundance of prejudice in his own favor in considering that he considers prejudice on the part of his critics.

I took some personal interest in these plays and found pleasure in hearing the explanatory lectures by Mr. Yeats the night before I went to witness the plays. I was very much impressed with the careful rehearsing and drilling of the parts by the players. I went to see the plays, not to criticise the plays. If I were selecting the plays, I would have chosen other subjects. There is much to be said on both sides of the question as to whether the particular plays shown here were fair representations of Irish character or any prominent phases of it.

JAMES J. PHELAN, Prominent Banker:

I think too much of the race from which I sprang to enter into any discussion that would lead to advertising Mr. Shaw further, or of anything he might represent. He is playing his game, and he may think that is the best way of doing it with the best commercial advantage.

DR. T. J. TIMMINS:

Many of the people who in literature now pretend to be consulting for the credit of the Irish people are really nothing but shoots of the Upas tree of Individualism, the polished Ireland materially, and it is untrue that the spread of that tree would continue in the congenial work of robbing and intellectually murdering.

DR. JOHN T. BOTTOMLEY:

I suppose that Bernard Shaw seriously anyhow and I certainly do not take him seriously on this question.

DR. THOMAS F. LEEN:

It looks to me as though he has forgotten and overlooked the patriotic and national enthusiasm exhibited [illegible] considering the commercial and financial side of his own pocketbook.

MAY NAME SPANISH PRINCESS CRISTINA

MADRID, Dec. 13.—The new born infant daughter of Queen Victoria of Spain will probably receive the name of Cristina. The Queen was present at a banquet which King Alfonso gave in honor of Cardinals Martin y Machio and Enriquez Almarza y Santos, Arch-bishops respectively of Valladolid and Seville, who were admitted to the Sacred College at the recent consistory in Rome.

MRS. SHEEHAN, WHO DIRECTS JAPANESE TABLE AT SALE

MRS DENNIS F SHEEHAN

The annual Christmas sale of the Catholic Ladies' Association opened to-day at 10 a. m., and will continue to 10:30 p. m. in the Hotel Westminster. A profusion of Christmas greens and laurels will transform the banquet hall into a Christmas bower, about which will be arranged the various booths, in charge of the members. An excellent program of entertainment has been prepared, including selections from the recent production of "The Bohemian Girl" at the Boston Opera House, by the members of St. Mary's Choir, Thatcher street, under the direction of Miss Mary Barr, president. An auction sale of unsold articles will take place at 9:30 to-night.

Luncheon and supper will be served afternoon and evening. The Japanese table is in charge of Mrs. Dennis F. Sheehan, assisted by young misses who dispense tea. The proceeds will be devoted to the maintenance of the settlement house founded and operated by the members of the association.

JEWISH PAPER LAUDS HEARST

CHICAGO, Dec. 13.—In a two-column editorial on the front page this morning, the Jewish Daily Press of Chicago gives to the Hearst newspapers the credit for the victory achieved by the passage of the Sulzer resolution in the House Committee on Foreign Affairs at Washington to-day. The paper, which is the most influential in Chicago Jewish circles, is edited by Abraham M Ludvig. Translated into English the editorial is as follows:

"The unanimous decision of the House Committee on Foreign Affairs recommending the Sulzer resolution on the passport question, will help to solve this important problem quicker than was expected.

"The Jewish people in the United States have always maintained that this was not a Jewish question. We rightfully thought, and so did the best thinking men of all nationalities in the land mutinuin, that Russia had no right to discriminate against our people, citizens of the United States, simply because they are Jews.

"We, however, appreciate that were it not for the able, powerful support given by the Hearst newspapers throughout the entire land, the agreement would not be so successful as it has proved to be.

"Too much praise cannot be bestowed upon Dr. Emil G. Hirsch, Judge Julian W. Mack and Julius Rosenwald. To them the Jewish people owe gratitude that will never be forgotten."

LUMBER SURVEYOR IS TRYING TO HOLD JOB

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—Representative McKay of Revere is in Washington, with thanks Crane of the same town, who has been surveyor of lumber at the Boston custom house and whose official head has been cut off by the treasury department. No other port in the United States has a surveyor of lumber. However, Crane believes himself still essential, and the job pays about $1,200 a year. Senator Lodge has agreed to go with McKay and Crane to the treasury department.

A NEW Talking Machine of latest hornless type, which produces in every way the results obtained heretofore only in instruments that cost $150 or $200, has now been developed and six hundred of these machines will be sold in Boston before Christmas.

In an undertaking of this magnitude many additional advantages, and from the extraordinary low price, can be offered to each buyer.

Twelve superb records, among them selections from the famous Rigoletto Quartet, and also the Lucia Sextet, for which two records alone many talking machine devotees have been glad to pay $13, will be included with each machine sold. Or buyer's own selection of records will be supplied.

This wonderful new talking machine may be purchased on terms of $7 cash and $5 a month until $59 all told has been paid.

The machine and the records will be sent on three days' free trial.

An unconditional guarantee as to material and workmanship accompanies each instrument sold, the guarantee being signed by the manufacturers and countersigned by us.

The instrument is furnished in very choice mahogany case, and also in quarter-sawed oak or fumed oak.

The finest selected woods are used in the construction of the cases, and the finish is as perfect as found upon the most expensive pianos.

Needless to reiterate, this hornless talking machine is simply perfect in tone and quality.

The instrument is equipped with largest size turntable, and the very best thoroughly noiseless triple spring motor. It will play three records with one winding, and has a new regulating device whereby the music can be rendered to exact tempo positively true to pitch. The machine has a new concert sound reproducer, which eliminates the heretofore objectionable rasping noise of needle. A clear, thoroughly natural tone is produced, such as has never before been obtained in any instrument costing less than $150 or $200.

In this machine the concealed horn is built separately from the motor, which permits the tone to come forth without any interference. The sound boards in this machine are carefully selected and so placed as to reproduce a tone absolutely lifelike. Modulating doors have been provided, whereby the tone volume can be definitely regulated and reduced or augmented at will.

The price is as stated, $59 cash, or payments of $7 cash and $5 a month.

The instruments go on sale tomorrow

ARRAIGN THREE AS ROBBER GANG

A general institution has been extended to the guilde by the police to visit headquarters in Pemberton square and identify the constituent parts of an immense pile of articles supposed to be the loot of the Fair gang. They plan it is said at headquarters, to hold a reception for all those who have been robbed recently.

Three men have been arrested, including Fair, who gives the name of George E. Lyman, thirty-seven years old. One of the others is Frank E. Williams, alias Monkey Connors, also known as Crowley and Howard. He was released from State Prison last February, after having served seven years for robbery. He had also been committed to the Concord Reformatory. He is thirty years old. The third member of the gang said he is George E. Lyman, thirty-seven years old of Philadelphia.

They told the police they had robbed so many places in Boston they couldn't remember their locations. The men will be arraigned to-day.

Fair came to Boston about a week ago, the police say, dressed like a Maine lumberman, and took a room in Corning street. Within a week he astonished the other lodgers by appearing in a fine tailor made suit and a fur lined overcoat. He appeared to be plentifully supplied with cash and spent it freely. He had two complaints. Suspicions were aroused and detectives were put upon his track and that led to the arrest of the others.

Fair had a memorandum book in his pocket with the names and addresses of seventy-five families in the Back Bay and Brookline.

In Fair's room the police found a bundle of burglar tools. Few such fit a professional burglar might be expected to carry. They also found loaded revolvers, cartridges, skeleton keys, electric flash lights and a various assortment of supposed burglars tools. There was a suitcase containing clothing and suitcases filled with plunder.

The "Big Bank" And the "Small Account"

In an editorial upon this subject, the Boston "Transcript" of December 6, 1911, said:—

"The Banks do not like to bother with these small accounts."

The First National Bank of Boston welcomes the so-called "small accounts" and extends to such customers every courtesy and convenience, considering it good business to have thousands of satisfied depositors availing themselves of its facilities.

Such an account in a strong financial institution like the First National Bank of Boston is assured absolute safety and all consistent banking accommodations.

*Re-elected.

The victory of James H. Malone over George W. Ford for Mayor in Chelsea, and an increased majority for moderance in license were among the features of the election in fifteen Massachusetts cities. No change was made in the attitude toward license in any of the cities voting. The temperance contest at Chicopee was decided by twenty-three votes and that at Pittsfield by sixty votes. There is a possibility of a recount in each case. Malone and Melrose were among the cities to accept the licensers position set.

In Chelsea, Malone defeated Ford in the most bitter election in the history of the city by a majority of 791 in a total of 4,357 votes. Malone received 2512 votes and Ford got 1,734. There were 198 blanks cast for the head of the ticket.

In the contest for Aldermen-at-large for two years, William A. Rowell polled 2,005, and William A. O'Brien secured the second place with 1,999 votes.

The vote was large for one year, George A. Henderson and Marcus M. Merritt won, the former being 1,947 and 1850, respectively. In the fight for ward Aldermen, James J. Kane defeated former Representative I. J. Carleton in Ward 2. Samuel Markel defeated Daniel M. O'Connell; in Ward 3, former Alderman David White defeated James L. Riley; in Ward 4, Captain William J. Williams won over Duncan Henderson, and in Ward 5, Alexander Cook defeated Oliver E. Wyeth by 329 votes.

The election was under the provisions of the new charter providing for a Mayor and nine Aldermen to take the place of the Board of Control.

On the license question the city went wet by a majority of 668, an increase of 211 votes over last year.

This is the second time that the citizens have elected a Democrat as Mayor, the other being the present judge of the local court, the Hon. Albert D. Bosson, who was elected in 1891, and served one year.

Lynn Stays "Dry."

Lynn will continue in the dry column another year, the city having voted 7259 for the fifth consecutive time against the legalized sale of intoxicating liquors. The vote was: Yes, 7,259; no, 7,685. The license question attracted 92 per cent. of the registered voters and while most of the offices were up for contest, two school committeemen were the subject of the only struggles. These were won by Dr. Herbert Gould and Frank E. Farrell. The other successful candidates were Thomas Campbell, for the overseers of public welfare; Herbert C. Baird for public properties commissioner.

Mayor Charles E. Hatfield of Newton, Chairman of the Republican State Committee, was returned to office for another two-year term after a strenuous contest. His opponent, William J. Doherty, Democrat, received a vote of 2,256, the largest ever cast for a Democrat candidate in Newton. Mayor Hatfield's total vote was 3,290, while the total vote of 5,908 was twenty-eight ahead of that cast at the State election in November. Newton cast 2,300 votes in spite of the fact that there was a three-cornered fight on. Murray Howe, Republican, 1,650, and Samuel Hughes, Independent Citizen, 1,080. The School Committee is Republican and the City Council Democratic.

James H. Chambers was elected Mayor of Everett, defeating Thomas J. Hoey. Chambers received 2,290 votes and Hoey 1,470. Mayor Herbert P. Worcott was not a candidate for re-election, but named a ticket for the School Committee and won, defeating J. J. Irwin, his opponents, 2,541 to 1,224.

SAY CANAL WILL DOOM NAVY YARD

The opening of the Panama canal, reports received at the Charlestown Navy Yard from Washington to-day said, will mean a tremendous change in the status of the plant, even if it is established. No battleships will visit it, the department stories said, scarcely any repair work will be done and only a handful of employees will be kept there. These reports received in Charlestown were practically confirmed by an interview with Secretary Meyer, head of the Navy Department.

Hints Changed Conditions.

"I have not yet recommended the sale of the Boston Navy Yard," Secretary Meyer is quoted, in a Washington dispatch, as saying. "There is a report of the general board of the navy and another report of the joint army and navy board, both favoring the sale of yards at Portsmouth, Boston and New York, and the establishment of a naval base on Narragansett Bay. I think it especially important just now that we do not abandon any yard, or spend $9,000,000 in improving the port facilities, that Boston people should consider fully the prospects of the Boston yard after the Panama canal has been completed."

The attitude of navy authorities, the stories heard at Charlestown say, makes it very clear that when the Panama canal is completed—which will be in about two years from now—the battleships will be in North Atlantic waters very little. They will divide their time between the Atlantic and Pacific, probably cruising more in the Pacific than on this side for very obvious reasons.

Struggle For Pacific.

The struggle for commercial mastery on the Pacific is already keen. International questions affecting the future profits of the United States will be more than ever between this country and the nations on the Pacific.

The fleet, of course, will pass freely and promptly through the canal, it is said. There is now a great naval base at Guantanamo and other large stations at Manila. The fleet is occupied under modern conditions only part of the time, while in peace in the Pacific and in the Caribbean rather than in the North Atlantic. The target practice which is now held in part in the North Atlantic will be done in the vicinity of Guantanamo and of the canal.

All these activities of the fleet and more that might be cited will enhance the importance of the naval base at Guantanamo and of one or two big yards upon the Pacific, including the great base now being constructed at Pearl Harbor, in Honolulu. As the authorities of the navy argue, these changes, incident to the opening of the Panama canal, mean that neither the Portsmouth, Boston and New York yards are sold or not, their importance in the maintenance of the fleet will greatly decrease.

End Inevitable.

It is said to be inevitable that a great portion of the repair work, which now goes to the northern yards, will be done on the Pacific coast and at yards that are nearer the scene of operations. It will be found impracticable, the same authorities claim, to send the fleet 2,000 miles and more to the North for the necessary repairs. The result must be that if the northern yards are retained they will gradually become small naval stations where only a handful of mechanics are employed. Consequently valuable property, like that at Boston and New York, would be of very little utility.

In order to counteract the report of the Central Labor Union, through its executive board, has sent to Secretary Meyer and to each of the Massachusetts Congressmen and Senators a protest against the assignment of unskilled enlisted men to do the work of citizen mechanics. The complaint was made to the Central Labor Union by the committee from the navy yard, the electrical workers and other unions whose members are employed in the Navy Yard.

Employees Furloughed.

Twenty ordnance men were furloughed for an indefinite period at the Navy Yard, it was said, as a result of the men of the crew of the Nebraska doing the work formerly done by the skilled men of that battleship.

It was stated that other men may be furloughed to-day or to-morrow on the completion of similar work on the battleship Arkansas. It was also stated that it had already been found that sailors could not do the dismounting work on the Nebraska's guns and they were knocked off and a gang of ordnance men who have always done such work were put on the task.

Congressman Murray, according to word received in Charlestown yesterday, has had a talk with Congressman Padgett of Tennessee, House chairman of the Committee on Naval Affairs, and as a result feels confident the navy yard will not be closed at this time.

Title is Good.

Word from Washington also said the government's title in the Navy Yard property, which had been questioned, was absolutely good.

The State of Massachusetts, it was said, though, has reversion rights in two small portions of the site, one portion is a bridge-and-road area near the gate. It was ceded by the State of Massachusetts with the condition that it should be used for Navy Yard purposes. If ever the government did not want it for the Navy Yard, the property should revert to the State.

One of the questions which the new Boston Dock Board will consider at its meeting to-day, will be the possibility of the big dry dock at the Navy Yard, should the government give it up.

But, when you price the Christmas furs, the price, the price—O, Lawsy me!

ELIOT SHOWS IMPROVEMENT

Latest reports of the condition of President Emeritus Charles W. Eliot of Harvard University are encouraging.

"Considerable improvement has been noted in the last twenty-four hours," said one cablegram from Kandy, Ceylon, where he was operated upon for appendicitis on Saturday.

A report received by his son, Dr. Samuel A. Eliot of Cambridge, said:

"Dr. Eliot passed a very comfortable day."

ANOTHER BALMY DAY FOR BOSTON

Boston to-day had another Springlike day. It was somewhat cooler than on the preceding few days, but the cold weather that had been predicted was still in the far distance.

Rain is expected sometime during the day. Here is the forecast: "To-day unsettled; to-morrow fair, light westerly winds, generally west."

The mercury hovered above the 63-degree mark and the winds were light and soothing. Most of the work on the Common was occupied. Squirrels were busily gathering nuts, while the birds gaily twittered.

The Fifty Greatest Ball Players in History

By Sam Crane

GEORGE WRIGHT—NO. 2.

There have been many great shortstops, but for all-round ability there has been none who ever played the position who has been able to force George Wright from the top-notch rung of the ladder of fame.

The game has gone along for ever forty years, too, since George first blossomed out as a star, and I have in mind when I give him this lofty record all of those grand players who have shone so brilliantly in the past and present.

There have been shortstops and short-stops. The Dicky Pearces, Davy Forces, Bob Fergusons, Jack Glasscocks, Joe Simons, Herman Longs, Jack Nelsons, Johnny Wards and other old-time immortals, who have come and gone, leaving reputations and records a mile long.

The Tinkers, Doolans, Elberfelds, McBrides, Bradleys, Bridwells, Barrys and Turners of the present are also all in my mind, who are thought by the fans of to-day to be pre-eminent. I have known them all and have seen them all play, but to George Wright I give the credit of being the best ever.

Game Is Faster To-day.

It is difficult to make the admirers of the "speed boys" of to-day think that any of the old time ball players could approach the players of the present for snap, ground covering and throwing, but while I acknowledge that there are more fast players to-day, still there were individuals in the earlier days of the sport who excelled the best who are now exploiting the game.

The game is faster and has progressed simply because there are more speedy players now than in the past.

George Wright is a brother of Harry Wright, that noble old veteran, around whom my first article on famous ball players was written. The fame of the Wright brothers was country-wide forty years ago, and George was the real player of the two. George's reputation as the greatest player of his time has not been dimmed in the least.

He was born in upper New York City, Yorkville, in the fifties, and with his elder brother, Henry, naturally took to baseball after learning the rudiments of cricket, taught him by his father, Sam Wright, the old professional cricketer.

Baseball was born in George Wright. He was consequently a natural ball player. He first came into prominence in the national game with the Unions of Morrisania, with which club he played short-stop, the position he always occupied afterwards in his four and a half a baseball career. I do not remember that he ever played on any other club, therefore he came second nature to him, and the many, many plays he was called upon to perform that brought victory after victory to his team year after year at critical stages were from intuition, although at times they often took on the look of being uncanny.

Cincinnati Defeated.

George Wright was probably as quick thinking a player as ever wore a uniform. His wits were always about him. He was invariably upon his mental tiptoes, and wherever he would pull off one of those grand, unexpected plays that were disagreeably surprising as to dumfound his opponents, his prominent mouth would gleam and glisten in an array of white, molars that would put our own Teddy Hinchman and his famed dentistry establishment far in the shadow.

To show George Wright's quick thinking ability and display of nerve at critical points in a game, the story that he pulled off against the Atlantics of Brooklyn, on June 4, 1870, the Fifth day of the contest that resulted in the Cincinnati Red Stockings winning their first defeat after an uninterrupted string of victories for a year and a half, is worth while. It created a big sensation at the time and caused the great slugger to come and play to be the talk of the country.

The game had gone along for ten innings, with the score a tie. The Reds had played their tenth without scoring. The excitement was intense. There were thirteen spectators on hand, and around to a state of frenzied expectation by the fact that the home team had a chance to stop the long winning record of the famous Red Stockings, the undefeated champions of the country. No such rare possibility had been anticipated.

The tenseness of the situation had been increased when McDonald and Pearce of the Atlantics had reached first, by some one out. The crowd was a howling mob. Smith, the next batter up for the Atlantics, popped up an easy fly to shortstop. George Wright, with hands extended high in the air, held them as it to catch the ball until the spectators was nearly in his grasp, when suddenly squatting to the ground, George allowed the ball to drop and he trapped it perfectly on the first short bound, scrambled up, threw the ball to Waterman at third, who in turn shot the ball to Start at second base, and both McDonald and Pearce were forced out before they knew where they were at.

Spectators Went Wild

The Atlantics were furious with rage and chagrin. To almost a man they were turned in an instant into possible defeat was a mental rumble that was awfully shocking. To almost a man they called it a "dirty trick," and George was the victim of every name the rooters called—and they would call a few times it all George's white team pleasant and glistening.

The Atlantics finally won out 8 to 7 in the eleventh inning, but that did not detract from George Wright's great headwork play.

In a game between the Boston Red Stockings and Philadelphia Athletics in 1875, when the Quakers had Oyler on first on losses and none out, George caught a fly ball in his cap, tossed the ball to the pitcher, thereby putting the ball in play again, according to the rules of the game, and a triple play resulted, but it was not allowed.

But it was in such critical times that George showed his great nerve and quick thinking abilities. He was always ready to grasp a point of play and never hesitated, no matter how many chances there were to take in securing the anticipated point.

From New York George went to Cincinnati in 1868 and joined the Cincinnati Red Stockings, of which his brother Harry was manager. George was the all around star of that famous bunch of champions. He led the club in batting and run getting, and these departments of play at that time were of the most import.

In the fifty-seven games the Red Stockings played George made 339 runs, fifty-nine of which were homers. His batting average was .518, showing that he made a fraction over a base hit every two times he was at bat.

Wonder if Ty Cobb could have done any better with the underhand pitching in vogue in those days?

George came to Boston in 1871 with his brother, Harry, as manager, and in the following season Harry then lived up to the reputation he had made in Cincinnati, as he was the star of the Boston Red Stockings until 1876, when he went to Providence to manage the Providence ball team, the team that won the championship flag in 1879, after a very close call. That wound up his active career as the directing mind.

Went Abroad With Boston.

In 1874 George was a member of the Boston Club that accompanied the Athletics to England, and while the introduction of baseball to our English cousins was not a pronounced success, still the ball players taught the Britishers some points in the game that in time developed it. It was always eighteen ball players against eleven cricketers, but the Americans were never defeated at the English game, and George Wright was the crack batter of the American eighteen.

George was the first shortstop to play a deep field. He played forty years between the lines of the diamond, and in the same position do to-day. Johnson, of the Athletics, throwing arm and deadly accuracy that allowed of his playing so deep, and he of course saw the advantage there was to be gained in covering ground by playing deep. He was the first to grasp that idea.

George Wright was about five feet ten inches tall and weighed about 160 in his prime. I remember him: he had a thick crop of dark curly hair, a small mustache and a dab on either cheek for a whisker effect. He was slightly built, very agile, and I never knew a bow-legged ball player who was not a good one. Hans Wagner.

George Wright is a millionaire, having gained wealth and prominence in the sporting goods business in Boston. He started in a small way in 1872, the year after he left the diamond for trade.

George is one of Boston's most respected citizens and still keeps in touch with the nations game that he has done so much to built up. He is the proud father of Beals Wright, the champion golf player.

JOHNSON ON WAY HOME.

CHICAGO, Dec. 13.—Jack Johnson champion heavyweight pugilist of the world, weighs nearly 300 pounds, and will never again attempt to ring a scale, except to retain his title, according to information received at this home here today. He is on the ocean on his way back to Chicago with his wife, who left Liverpool yesterday and before starting let it be known to his friends in Chicago that he had finished with the roped arena. Johnson then set out that he will engage in business when he reaches home.

ROMANOFF WINS MATCH.

SPRINGFIELD, Dec. 13.—Ivan Romanoff, Russian Cossack wrestler, defeated Mert Henderson here in the main bout of a fast contested wrestling matches in the city for several months. The match was the best two falls out of three. It took an hour and fifteen minutes to put Henderson on his back in the first fall and twenty-nine minutes to pin him with the shoulder. Romanoff weighs 275 pounds and is 6 feet 2 inches in height. Henderson weighs 210 pounds and secured his first victory with a half nelson and crotch hold. He met the match with a hammerlock double crotch and neck hold. Henderson, in a short space after the bout, stated his opponent was too heavy for him.

KELLEY DEFEATS NITCHIE.

LEWIS OUTPOINTS WEST.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—Willie Lewis of the East Side came back at Brewer's Gymnasium and defeated Billy West in their 10-round bout. Lewis was too fast for West.

SOMERVILLE BOY CAPTAIN.

STORRS, Ct., Dec. 15.—Alvan H. Howard, 1913, of Somerville, has been elected captain of the Connecticut Agricultural College football team for next season.

BOXERS BUSY IN RING TO-NIGHT

By JACK CONWAY.

Nothing to do till to-night! This is the slogan of a large number of New England boxers to-day. A fine array of bouts is on tap for boxing devotees this evening. The leading bout to take place in New England is the one between Johnny Connolly, the Scotch lightweight champion, and Dave Deshler of Cambridge, which is billed for Manchester, N. H.

Both of these star lightweights are in perfect condition for the fray and are sure to put up a thrilling bout. The mill will be pulled off in Merchants Hall and will go fifteen rounds to a decision.

Connolly is now a prominent figure in boxing circles hereabouts. He came to this country from Scotland a few years ago and after winning his spurs at an amateur tournament at the Arena A. A. he pondered the professional field and has been pushing over the left lightweights in New England with clocklike precision ever since. His latest triumph was over the veteran Peter Sullivan at New Bedford.

Connolly will have to put in the limit of his lifetime if he is to defeat Deshler. Dave is one of the cleverest lightweights in New England. He recently fought Young McDonough at Manchester and the affair was a draw, though it is claimed he got the worst end of the decision.

Amateurs at B. A. A.

The B. A. A. amateur tournament gets underway to-night with the trials. A large number of entries have been received for the different classes. They are 105, 125, 140, 158 and heavyweight class.

The amateur boxers have been given plenty of opportunities to perform this season, and many clever performers are getting into condition for the New England and national amateur championships which take place in this city in the Spring.

The New England championships will be held March 30, while the national champion ships will be held on April 8 and 9.

In past years, local sons have made great showings in the national championships, so they are looking forward to repeat their triumphs. The show at the B. A. A. to-night will be the first appearance of the locals and will be pulled off on Saturday evening.

At Belmont, the lithe Italian bantamweight, will journey to the Rose Newport Hippodrome to-night in order to give battle to Young Britt. From where I sit it looks as though Delmont would win in a walk.

There are only about half a dozen bantamweights in the world who are capable of giving Al enough exercise to get up a sweat. Delmont is one classy performer and can make 116 pounds at 3 o'clock and still be strong.

Munies Meets Miller.

Jimmy Walsh is numbered among the list of boxers who are capable of making things interesting for Billie Cox's star. There is certainly room between his ears and it wouldn't be a bad idea to match them up when the Armory A. A. reopens its doors.

Ike Now Bedford fans have not been neglected in the distribution of bouts, shortly after 9:30 this evening Johnny Munise and Dick Miller will crawl through the ropes at the clubs in the Washington. Both are prepared to strain every muscle and sinew in their bodies in order to bring home the bacon.

Both of these men are footlight fans and are fast boys and good hitters. Munise is under the management of Hector Supple, who says that he is a "comer" in his class.

With the Boxers

Eddie McGeorty and Harry Ramsey will settle their differences when they meet in a six-round bout at Pittsburg to-night. The men were scheduled to swap wallops last week, but the mill was postponed. McGeorty has got a hunch that he is the coming middleweight champion.

Tom Kennedy, Gotham's husky white "hope," will try and slip a dreamland punch over on Jack McFarland at New York to-night. Several score of society people swear in the "Big Tom" have got a hunch that Thomas is the coming heavyweight champion of the world. Kennedy is a big, strong fellow, but he has yet to prove that he is a great, or even a second rate boxer. He looks good, but has yet to prove that he is a regular white "hope."

It will be a case of punching bag vs. punching bag when Joe Nelson and Joe Grim clash at Lawrence to-morrow night. Neither of these men are clever boxers in form till they have been knocked down a couple of times for the count of "10."

Speaking of Joe Nelson reminds me that "Gunboat" Eldridge will soon be back in harness. Eldridge gave Nelson a great battle at the Tremont street club last Fall. He had been beating Nelson decisively in ways up to the time that he broke his hand and was forced to throw up the sponge.

Charles Maddox, a law abiding citizen of Boston says that his refrigerator answers to the name of Frank Mack, is ready to meet any lightweight in New England. Mack displayed his skill on two different occasions at the Armory A. A. last Winter. Mack's manager may be reached at Bellows Block, Roxbury.

Ray Bronson is now out to annex the welterweight title. The Indianapolis scrapper says that he doesn't intend to fight as a lightweight any more. Bronson is now afire, a match with Mike Gibbons, who is being touted by New York scribes as the wonder of wonders.

Kid Sealer of Spokane is training hard for his bout with Johnny Gallant of Chelsea, which takes place at the Unity Athletic Club of Lawrence on December 23. The mill is a twelve-round affair.

FAST HORSES IN GRIFFIN STABLE

Thomas J. Griffin, a prominent member of the Dorchester and Metropolitan Driving Club, has bought two very promising trotting colts, one of which is entered in close to $60,000 worth of futurity stakes to be decided next season.

Worthy Prince is three years old, by Prince McKinney, the stallion recently purchased by A. B. Parker of Bedford, and is out of Nell Worthy, 2.22, sister of Tom Worthy, 2.07, and dam of three in the list. Elsie colt has a record, made this season, of 2.28¼.

Nelda Prince is the futurity candidate, being now a two-year-old, and is by Prince McKinney, out of Nelda Worthy, 2:12¾, by Axworthy, 2.15¾. She is a slick moving filly and promises to make a low record on the turf.

Mr. Griffin also owns the champion pacer of the Franklin Field speedway, Easter Direct, 2.09¾, a winner of the champion cup awarded to the winner of the fastest heat in a race the past season, her time being 1.01½, the pacing for the half-mile track.

SKATING MEETING SOON.

A meeting of the New England Skating Association will be held soon at the Boston Arena to formulate plans for the speed and fancy skating season. Secretary Arthur L. Johnson has notified the clubs of New England of the meeting. Melnids, who is a member of the Arctic Club, Charles S. Abbey, treasurer of the Arctic and a resident of Hingham, is interested in the speed skaters in the Western part of the State and will invite them to compete at the meet. Edward F. Riley of Boston, who made the New England champion, who made such a fine showing at the international speed races here last winter, is preparing for a hard Winter campaign.

ZBYSZKO HAS CHALLENGE.

DULUTH, Dec. 13.—Replying to numerous challenges issued by Giavoni Raicevich to Zbyszko, J. H. Hermann, manager for the Pole, states that he is prepared to match his man against the Italian at any time in a finish match, and just to show what he thinks of Raicevich's ability Hermann states that he does not want one cent of the purse. If his man does not win the required two falls within an hour.

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORT NEWS

Jack Hendricks, who came from Denver to buy the Boston Nationals, has given up the quest, according to his own statement, and will go back to the West after having a "good time" in New York, under orders.

Jimmie McGill, a graduate of Princeton, who was betting commissioner for his uncle, the late "Pittsburg Phil," is Hendricks's associate in the ownership of the Denver Club. McGill inherited part of "Pittsburg Phil's" fortune. When the Boston Nationals were thrown on the market, McGill had Hendricks come East with the intention of buying. Hendricks landed in New York with enough real money to buy the Rustlers. When he learned that the Russell estate wanted $200 a share, he wired to McGill:

"Nothing doing unless you give up three silver and two gold mines."

"Never mind the Boston Club," replied McGill. "Have a good time and come back soon."

"I shied at Boston," said Hendricks, "because I would have had to assume $26,000 in debts, a $200,000 mortgage, a ball-end team and an ancient ball park, in addition to paying $150,000 cash for the stock.

"I have only the team took in $170,000 and cost $155,000. It would take a half million to buy the club and put it on a paying basis. Not for me."

Thus Boston lost one of the few ball players who have become rich. When he left the Giants, he became interested in Colorado mining and made money. Then he and McGill took the Denver team and made more.

Now that the Eastern League has changed its name to the International, the Connecticut League wants to change, too. A movement has been started to call it the Eastern League. The Connecticut League contains two Massachusetts clubs. A change would be opportune now. Jack Zeller of the Springfield team tried several years ago to change the name, but the Connecticut magnates opposed it. The league is now being reorganized and the Connecticut men may yield.

Harry Wolverton, who wore a Boston National uniform five years ago, has made steady progress up the baseball ladder ever since he took a chance and jumped to the outlaw Tri-State League. As playing manager of the Williamsport team he won some pennants. Through the influence of Frank Farrell, owner of the New York Yankees, the blacklist was raised from Wolverton in 1908. Farrell was interested with George Stallings in the New-ark Eastern League team at that time. McGinnity and F. C. Smith bought the team under Farrell's condition that Wolverton manage it. The team finished a good second. Wolverton went to Oakland the following Spring, made a tail-end team and finishing a good second this year.

Now he succeeds Hal Chase as manager of the Yankees in the American League. He used to be a coming second baseman, but he will not play next season. He will manage the team in uniform. Wolverton is an aggressive manager of the McGraw type. He will stand for no interference and will be the whole show in the New York team. The newest American League manager is about thirty-four years old.

Cornell and Penn are not likely to part company on the gridiron, reports to the contrary notwithstanding. They need the money. Cornell gets from $25,000 to $30,000 from the Penn game and that helps finance the other sports. Penn is in similar condition. Also, Penn could not get any other big college team for Thanksgiving.

If the National Commission can stop baseball betting it will confer a benefit not only on the sport in general, but upon thousands of poor New England families that are as much victims of the baseball pools as they were victims of the policy "shanzie." The National Commission could also make the police look cheap if the move were successful. Factory workers—men, women and children—are victimized by the baseball pools. The "sharks" who operate them collect thousands of dollars, giving back a comparatively small percentage in prizes. They operate on the great popular enthusiasm over the national game.

SETTLE LEAGUE NAME.

Harold C. Burrell, secretary of the Greater Boston Interscholastic Hockey League, has announced that he has consented to allow the four schools, Arlington, Melrose, Somerville and Bridge, to adopt the name of Interscholastic League. The name of the Interscholastic League of the Greater Boston I. H. A. has been changed to the Boston Hockey League, and it will comprise Dorchester High, Boston Latin, English High and Boston College High. If the cup in the Interpreparatory League is lifted permanently this Winter, Secretary Burrell says he will donate a new cup next year. One-year cups will be given after the Prep. One-year cups five-year cups run out and the City League will have a one-year cup to contest for this season.

HARVARD NINE TO OPEN NEW RED SOX PARK IN BACK BAY

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTS

RUSTLER TEAM SOLD TO GAFFNEY OF NEW YORK FOR $175,000

$175,000 PAID FOR RUSTLERS

Johnson declared that every impediment was placed in the way of the triumvirate directors. He said that neither the New York club nor anybody connected with the National League so much as turned a finger to aid the scheme, and that his National Commission colleagues were so contemptuous that nothing short of an affidavit would be considered.

Johnson intimated that the last proof had been furnished that three parties representing the theatrical ticket agencies had secured their tickets from some source and that those tickets were in great blocks.

Of the number 1,200 were sold, 1,70 were returned to the New York club and 100 were presented for. When asked how the tickets got out of the Giant office, Johnson said:

"Ghosts of the New York club put them in the hands of the speculators. My detectives reported their names to be Hilliard and Vincent."

Johnson intimated that this was not the first time his colleagues on the National commission had tossed the harpoon into him.

"You will remember that three years ago there was a little scandal of the same sort in which the Cubs were implicated," said Johnson. "Well, I certainly had enough on two baseball officials then. The fair should have been driven out of organized baseball. I was unable to lock them out because I could get no support. If the National League cares to cater to such people well and good. We are through. The final circuit will no longer have a chance to sully our fair name, for we will run our league independently of it in future, as our resolution recites we will handle all the sales of our games."

Herrmann Is Surprised.

Chairman August Herrmann, when informed of the attitude of the American League expressed great concern when told that the American League had completed all its business, and that Johnson as well as the club owners, would scatter for their homes in the morning, said:

"Why I had intended to call another commission meeting this week to prosecute the charges against Illiett sales here and in Philadelphia. I cannot say what action the commission will be forced to take now."

Johnson says that he is going to Chicago today, and that he does not expect to hear any more of the ticket scandal until the annual meeting of the National Commission in Cincinnati on January 2. If not even then. Johnson has given up his dilemma.

Here is the situation this morning: Ban Johnson and the American League defy the National Commission. They declare that there will be no World's Series in the future unless these are conducted in direct violation of the peace agreement, as amended by the National commission at the meeting the week before the World's Series. The peace agreement which binds fraternity will organized baseball expires soon.

Deadlock for President.

Umpire Jack Sheridan was voted a pension of $1,200 a year for life in case the veteran refuses to officiate as umpire this year.

This year Sheridan was also voted a handsome gold watch charm on the suggestive that he has been officiating at baseball games for after a two hours session at the Waldorf Astoria.

One sharp umpire betrayed the fact that the old fascination for baseball is not dead. It was the most bitter fights of a bitter meeting. It adjourned for the day before the matter of election of officers came up for consideration. This, however, does not mean that no ballots for officers would be taken with the result that the magnates were deadlocked.

Three votes voted for the re-election of Tener, Ward, Pulliam, Dreyfuss and Hempstead.

St. Louis and Boston, refused to cast a vote. Pittsburg, New York and Cincinnati all voted for Tener. Pulliam was active against the usual Chicago, Philadelphia, Brooklyn combination.

Both parties were actively campaigning last night. The Pittsburg-Chicago-New York-Boston-Brooklyn combination was for Edward Stellinger, the Pittsburg magnate. The Cincinnati-Philadelphia-St. Louis combination was for the re-election of Tener.

Each party claimed that it was able to oust Lynch, but Garry Herrmann, it is said, holds a number of bonds of Fogel and Murphy, a bond that the Cincinnati man today exercised.

According to gossip, during the World's Series Mr. Fogel wrote two letters. One was addressed to Herrmann, chairman of the National Commission, over some decisions which took place during the Philadelphia. The other was to C. W. Murphy, president of the Cubs. In the latter missive Fogel is said through direct frankness to Murphy to have betrayed Manager Connie Mack and Murphy own the Philadelphia club. He is said to have suggested to Murphy that his (Murphy's) club should be strengthened with the best Philadelphia players in order to win the Windy City a pennant winner.

Fogel regretted the circumstance that his club could not be in competition against the World's Champion Athletics and suggested that the other teams, and should be strengthened so that bad ends would reap the harvest.

By mistake Fogel mailed Murphy's letter to Herrmann, who has a copy of it to spring on the unsuspecting opposition to force it into line. Fogel was questioned on the subject last night but no hint of the letters' contents was tipped off to him.

"I'll not deny," he said, "that I did get my signature impressed and that a letter bearing my signature was sent to Louisville Club, was directed to Mr. Herrmann. Nor will I deny that in it I confessed to intentions that were in direct violation of baseball law. Who does not? we have to do it in these days. We feel that we have to pay scouts to dig up material for nothing.

"But see, Garagon wanted some of my players that I couldn't futm legitimately and I promised them to him, but what do I care. I've just been re-elected to the presidency of the Phillies and I don't give a fig for the National Commission. Well I promised those players to Grayson.

"Yes, I think Murphy owns the Louisville club. Mr. Herrmann returned the letter to me, saying that he had opened it, but hadn't read it. Who should read it, and I, Mr. O'Brien promises more startling revelations to-day.

Bob Hedges, owner of the St. Louis Browns, arrived in time to attend the meeting. He was marooned for a couple of days on a mud flat in the Gulf, where his steamer went aground. Hedges declares that there is no truth in the report that he is negotiating for the services of Fred Lake. Rhody Wallace will pilot the Browns in 1912, according to President Hedges.

The new Board of Directors of the American League will be composed of Robert J. Hedges of St. Louis, James McAleer of Boston, Ben Shibe of Philadelphia and Frank J. Navin of Detroit.

The American League adopted a resolution of President Ban Johnson which puts an end to the practice of umpires signaling on baseball games. The pooling scheme in baseball will be limited as far as possible, so the suggestions of the National Association and Minor Leagues relative to proposed changes in the peace agreement to be adopted next Monday were left by the American League entirely in the hands of Ban Johnson.

College Gridiron Stars Elected Captains of the Big Football Teams for 1912

HARVARD WILL OPEN SOX PARK

The Harvard and Red Sox baseball nines will play the first game to be played in the new Red Sox park in the Back Bay. The teams will meet on April 10. This announcement was made by William H. Garfield, the Harvard Athletic Association graduate-treasurer, following a meeting of the athletic association.

At the same meeting the schedules of the hockey and baseball teams were approved by the officials. The hockey schedule, which was drawn up before the Christmas recess and does not permit any Western trip during the recess. The hockey schedule:

Jan. 6, open; 10, Princeton at New York; 18, Technology at Boston; 27, Cornell at Boston; 31, St. Michael's at Boston.

Feb. 3, McGill at Boston; 10, Yarsouth, at Boston; 17, Yale at Boston; 21, Yale at New Haven; 24, Yale at New York (in case of tie).

The baseball schedule calls for 21 games. A long Spring training trip is mapped out for the team during which the nine will play practice games with the Southern colleges. Several games have been arranged with the Georgetown and Annapolis players and games with other teams are pending. For the first time in many years, the Crimson will play games before the annual battle Holy Cross on the latter's diamond.

The Yale game dates have not yet been announced. This is not due to any conflict in the management but rather to the fact that the faculties are attempting to arrange dates that will be agreeable to both colleges and not conflict with the many games in the Berkshires.

The only new team on the schedule is Lafayette, who will play in Cambridge on May 9. The University of Pennsylvania will be played in Philadelphia this year, and not at Cambridge as it in the past few years.

The baseball schedule:

April 10—Red Sox at Boston; 23, Bates; 26, Maine; 27, Colby at Boston.

May 2—Bowdoin; 4, Amherst; 7 Lafayette; 9 Fairfield; 11, Holy Cross at Worcester; 13, Springfield; 18, Dartmouth; 20, Brown; 25, Princeton; 30, Pennsylvania at Philadelphia.

June 1—Exeter; 3, Williams; 8, Brown at Providence; 12, Holy Cross, Yale games unsettled.

The committee also voted to allow the baseball team, which is being coached by ex-Champion Tom Anderson, to compete in one collegiate contest. The meet has not been arranged yet but the management will endeavor to arrange a meeting with Yale.

UVICK QUITS TO BATTLE.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—After making a gallant fight for nine rounds, with the chances of success running low in the last session, Billy Uvick of Omaha deliberately ran out of the ring of the Royale A. C. before the bell could call him to the fronting. Referee Sailor Burke declared that Uvick's seconds were unable to stop him from jumping through the ropes and Burke technically earned the credit of knocking him out.

In a safe place Uvick said: "I'm so game as any man and willing to take punishment with the best, but I was half blind and my right arm was all in. I asked my seconds to throw up the towel in the eighth round, but they refused, so I just ran out."

AWARD SCHOOL SWEATERS.

The Somerville High School Athletic Committee has decided upon the football players eligible to receive sweaters and letters. Sweaters will be given the following: Farmer, Wiley, Herbert Merrill, Howard Merrill, Durdis, Pitman, Deane, Leland, Garland, Yeo, Ellis, Hefferan, Cobden, Hodgkins, A. Anderson, Nelson, Townsend, Hunnewell, Bradley, George, Bowditch, Manager Walter Whittaker, Oscar Cederlund, assistant manager. Letters only were awarded to Frank Anderson, L. Cohen and Martell.

ELECT CHEISSONG AGAIN.

Members of the Melrose High School football team have unanimously re-elected William Cheissong, the fullback, captain of the team. Last season he played every position on the eleven because of injuries to the other players, but in the important games he played fullback.

Harvard the Only One of the Big Teams Which Has Not Elected.

Captains for the football teams of 1912 have been chosen as many colleges and in almost all instances the pick has proved favorable to the followers of the teams. Several of the colleges have yet to name their leaders, but it is expected that they will fall in line within a week.

The captain of the Harvard team has not been named as yet, but the leader will be selected at the next meeting of the all-American backfield, which is the most likely combination, although it is not expected that he will win the honor unanimously.

Jesse Spalding of Chicago has been elected captain of the Yale football team for next season and his choice was announced as unanimous. Twenty-two players who participated in the Princeton and Harvard games cast their votes for the Chicago man. Spalding has announced that he will not talk of his plans. It is almost certain that Arthur Howe, captain of this year's eleven, will be chosen as coach. The captain-elect is one of the late Jesse Spalding, who was collector of the port at Chicago, and is a millionaire capitalist.

Mercer Leads at Pennsylvania.

Leroy Mercer will again lead the University of Pensylvania football team. He was chosen unanimously to that honor. Mercer is one of the greatest athletes at Pennsylvania, being a quarter-mile runner, hurdler, pole vaulter and all-American football player.

The coaching system at Hello. Penn'ania followers believe that it was the lack of material and not poor coaching that was responsible for the poor showing of the team this year. Russell G. Ashbaugh of Youngstown, O., Brown star right end and Walter Camp's choice for his third team, has been chosen captain of the Brown team and his appointment met with approval. He is the third captain in consecutive years who has hailed from Ohio. The new leader has played on the varsity team for the past three years.

Ashbaugh Is Speedy.

This season he made a name for himself as a speedy performer, particularly by his ability to receive the forward pass. This play was a strong factor of Brown's attack and many times a pass from Spracklen to Ashbaugh gained more than the required distance. Ashbaugh is also a sure kicker after a touchdown. This season out of twenty-five possible he scored he kicked the pigskin between the uprights twenty-five times.

Bennett has been appointed to lead the 1912 Dartmouth team on the gridiron and his choice met with great approval. Bennett has been putting up a great game in the line for the Green team for the past two seasons.

James Thorpe, the wonderful athlete at Carlisle, has been elected to lead the Indians next season. Thorpe is a Sac and Fox Indian from Oklahoma. He went to Carlisle in 1908 with no knowledge of athletics whatever, but since then he has developed a marvelous variety of athletic feats on floor, gridiron, diamond, track and field that colleges that have met him astonished. He has hung up good records in the shotput, high and low hurdles, 100-yard dash, broad jump, high jump, and is a wonder at basketball, football and baseball. He also plays lacrosse, tennis, indoor baseball, hockey and handball with equal skill.

CHAMPION DE ORO IN LEAD.

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—Alfred De Oro maintained his lead over John Daly in their match at Doyle's Academy in the second game of the billiard series, when he beat Daly by a score of 50 to 47. The score now favors De Oro 100 to 87. Daly played well in the first innings and got within one point of the Cuban. After that his playing fell off and De Oro increased his lead.

GOOD MATCHES IN CITY LEAGUE

The matches in the City League tonight will have an important bearing on the standing. While Carruth and Murray & Irwin are having it out, Elite and Boylston have a good chance to jump into the lead.

Elite should be able to take all four points from Chenagog, while the Boylston bowlers will find the Adams Square rollers a tough proposition.

The Carruth-Murray & Irwin match is easily the feature one of the night. A record-breaking crowd is sure to be present, and it is safe to say that the Hanover street alleys will not accommodate everybody. Chester Carruth is trying to make as much space as possible.

Carruth is the favorite, but the Mish Murray rollers are confident that they will be able to take the Hanover street pinmen into camp. None of the bowling "bugs" are expecting any record, but rather low scores.

If Jack Taylor, Dick O'Brien, McKee and Kirk keep up their good work Carruth will find it hard in winning even one point from the Murray quintet. Anchorman Kirk has been getting the pins in fine style lately and is confident that he will be able to repeat his good work.

Unless chesnny springs an unexpected surprise on Elite, like McCarthy did last week, the Boston street rollers should find it easy in taking them into camp.

Tonight's card is sure to have a hard contest with Adams Square, but should be able to win them. Manager Irving has taken the place of John Christopher on the Boylston quintet, and has done some fine ten pin rolling.

Hayward meets McCarthy, and a hot battle is anticipated between the two tallied teams.

The Leather League matches at the Arch street alleys will be the hottest waged for some time. Sterling Colt, who is tied with Duggan & Hood for first place, tackles an easy opponent in the Newcastle quintet and should not find it hard in retaining the lead.

Duggan & Hood, the other contenders for first place, will have the Winslow team for their opponent, and it is bound to be a battle royal. The latter team is only one point behind Duggan & Hood and will not be content to take an match to replace Pat Curley's aggregation.

MORRIS EASILY BEATS WILLIAMS

CLEVELAND, Dec. 13.—Carl Morris, the "Oklahoma Giant," made short work of Al Williams of this city. The fight was stopped in the third round. Williams was punished severely and was helpless against the jabs dealt by Morris.

The Oklahoman weighed 228 and the local man 205 pounds. Morris towered above his opponent and seemed to receive two or three blows that were landed by Williams with complete indifference.

Morris never sought to do the leading, but was content to close, and in the fighting got in short arm jabs that did their work quite effectively. Williams soon was bleeding freely, while Morris was unscarred.

In the second Williams went to the floor for the count, and twice more in the third round.

MALO DEFEATS BLACK.

Both the Cathedral first and second quads have won both of their games so far and lead the league, while the St. Alphonsus teams have lost two. The Roxbury organizations claim to be in poor form and hopes to make a better showing than against the Cathedral Five.

The St. Joseph's first team has won both of its games while the St. Mary's team has lost both after hard contests. The North end lads are confident that they will reverse themselves in their game to-night with the St. Joseph's.

The West End lads have been traveling at a fast clip and the match is bound to be lively and interesting. Both the second teams have split even in their contests and the fight for premier honors is sure to be interesting.

THE AMERICAN'S MAGAZINE PAGE

The American Boy

By THOMAS TAPPER

No. 13—Are Books Necessary?

HAVE you ever stopped to think about the Unknown Kingdom of those that are unknown to most of us.

There is, probably, not one healthy-minded American boy who could not find endless pleasure in learning even a little about minerals. For a few cents each he can buy small and beautiful specimens and gradually make a collection that would cost but a trifle over all, and open his eyes to a new world. There are many other equally beautiful kingdoms. Why do we not take the little trouble necessary to visit them?

Why is there a stronger desire in some American boys to tie a tomato can to a dog's tail than there is to borrow an opera glass and look at the moons of Jupiter, or give the telescope man a dime for a view of the rings of Saturn?

The answer is very simple. Every healthy-minded American Boy would rather see the moons of Jupiter or the rings of Saturn than tie a can to a dog's tail. But the dog and the can are generally easier to find than the telescope is—so he does not think of it. But we all believe in the clever-mindedness of the American Boy. All he needs is the suggestion.

II.

But of all the great Kingdoms that remain closed to many of us, the Kingdom of Books is the great and wonderful one. Are books necessary to the American Boy who has secured a little education and has been obliged to get a job early in life and earn his own living?

There are a great many different books in the world, possibly millions of titles. There are books on every conceivable subject. Practically any book can be borrowed for reference, by anyone, from a public library.

Every good book contains the best thought, to date, on the subject which it treats. In a small package, weighing only a few ounces, someone has told, so that every boy may understand, just what is known about the subject.

It would be difficult to find any kind of work to which a boy turns his hand that he cannot read about, if he wants to learn.

If he is a farmer's boy, and works on the farm, there is an enormous number of books that explain the best way to do everything connected with farm work from how to spade the ground to how the best lettuce can be raised on a plot twenty by forty.

A messenger boy can, if he wants to, read up telegraphy. A boy who runs errands for a silk importing house would be literally surprised to know how interesting are the books on silk culture and manufacture.

And so on. The point is that the best advice the world has to offer on any kind of a job can be found in books. A boy desirous of "getting into the game" seriously will read them. They will take off any handicap he may have. They will put him far ahead of that group of boys that never will read or talk or ask questions.

This group of books on trades, manufactures and commerce will help him. But he should not overlook the books for real pleasure that may also be had.

III.

I met in Paris a boy of sixteen years old, who was running an elevator in a hotel. He had one idea in life above all others: namely, to learn to speak English and German, so that he could, in the future, be a head waiter in a fine restaurant. Every time an English or German-speaking man entered the elevator that boy would greet him politely, and, if he could do it without offence, he would ask him to pronounce a word or two of which he was not sure.

He won my interest and probably that of many others. He kept his bit of paper in his pocket, and between trips studied the words he had begged from the passengers. He told me that he had one hour only in the evening that he could give to study. His wages were small, but his tips were many. He lived on the first and was saving tips to get to London, where he hoped to get to work and remain there long enough to get a practical speaking knowledge of English. Then he expected to go to Berlin and do the same for German.

He was a type of knowledge.

He thought of the job ahead.

He put in his spare minutes on it.

And he is sure to win out.

How to Keep Young and Pretty—By Mlle. Gaby Deslys No. 7—Care of the Feet

Copyright, 1911, by the National News Association

MLLE. DESLYS' advice to-day concerns the care of the feet and the proper way to wear shoes. Here are a few extracts from her striking story below, which should be of the utmost value to all women:

It astonishes me to see how the average American girl can be so totally unconscious of the fact that she has any feet.

One does not see young French girls sitting with their legs crossed or wrapped around the legs of chairs.

Dancing is the best way to teach grace to any girl.

All dancers have small feet; that is because they know how to use them properly.

People get big feet when the arch of the foot is broken by unintelligent use or badly made shoes.

"Every day I marvel at your beautiful American shoes"

By GABY DESLYS.

EVERY day I marvel at your beautiful American shoes. When I go back to Paris I shall take a whole trunkful of them with me, for especially on the stage they make the feet look so small and dainty.

In France, by that I mean in Paris, our slippers are made much longer and more pointed than they are over here, and I think that they make the feet look larger, too.

But the Parisian is very vain about her feet, and our slippers and shoes are of beautiful materials—brocades and velvets and satins, and most of all we are taught at a very early age how to manage our feet so that they look graceful, no matter how large the shoes.

It astonishes me so much to see how the average American girl can be so totally unconscious of the fact that she has any feet. The French woman, who is, I think, the most wonderfully graceful (you agree with me, don't you?) begins when she is a very little girl to learn the proper way to place her feet, and you do not see young girls sitting with their legs crossed, or with their feet in queer twisted positions, or twining and twisting them around the legs of chairs, for instance. They are always conscious of the "expression" of the feet and of the lessons which have been taught them.

I think dancing is the best way of teaching grace to any girl, and a course of dancing will give the feet what I call intelligence, so that they don't sprawl about and make themselves conspicuous by their ungraceful attitudes.

Learning the old-fashioned dances like the minuet and the pavanne is splendid training and delightful exercise, and these stately dances will improve the carriage as well as teaching the feet how to behave. I have studied all kinds of dancing—what we call classic dancing, and what you call fancy dancing—and to it I owe my reputation for grace, and also the fact that I have perfect feet, for dancing is the best means of cultivating a truly shapely well-developed, yet small foot.

All dancers have small feet, you know; that is because they know how to use them properly. People get great big flat feet when the arch of the foot is broken by unintelligent use or badly made shoes.

Dancers always have high instep, and I advise any one whose feet are ugly or awkward, and who does not know how to walk gracefully, to learn something of the art of dancing.

With the tight skirts that we have been wearing for the last year, it is really necessary to think about your feet, for when you don't you are apt to stand or sit in a position which would be all right with long, trailing skirts, but with your feet exposed as they are now, the result is surely ludicrous and in older women it is anything but dignified.

A great many women balance themselves badly and their figures get entirely out of shape, because they habitually stand with their feet in the wrong position.

Then the heels of the shoes get trodden down, and the entire body loses its poise. Many women have one hip larger than the other, or one shoulder higher than the other.

My shoemaker in Paris assured me that such persons' shoes were always trodden down at the heel or at one side of the sole, and that it was because they didn't stand properly that their figures were so bad. This seems a dreadful price to pay for the neglect of so important a thing as proper attention to the feet, doesn't it?

If we want to look graceful and have good figures, let us cultivate intelligent feet, not for running away, but for walking, standing, and sitting.

Do You Know That—

What is presumably the largest sign in the state of Washington or the world was recently constructed on the east bank of the Columbia river, just above the town of Beverly. From the windows of passing trains it catches the eye of the traveler, and may be easily seen for a distance of several miles. The sign is nearly a quarter of a mile long; the letters are forty feet wide and 100 feet high.

A lumber pavement has stood a successful trial of a year near Birmingham, England. The material is first coarsely shredded almost to pulp, and treated with bitumen and tar. The road is not affected by hot weather, gives off little dust, resists wear and is not influenced by weather. Its noiselessness and springiness allow a good kind of comfort to horses and drivers.

Mr. Henry Lawrie, Widows Row, Haggs, Stirlingshire, England, can lay claim to a unique record, and one that will not be easily beaten. Of a family of seven sons and six daughters, the whole of the sons sought to uphold the King's colors and joined the army.

Wife-beaters in Germany are not sent to jail, but are arrested on leaving work on Saturdays and detained in prison till the time for resumption of labor on Monday. While the offender is thus serving his time his earnings are handed to his wife and family.

A full sized cigar contains as much as 4 grains of nicotine; a pipeful of tobacco not more, as a rule, than two-thirds of a grain.

Without the ceaseless labors of microbes coal would be an uninhabitable charnel-house.

A Swimming Lesson

By WINIFRED BLACK

DEAR WINIFRED BLACK:

Should like to hear from you on the question:

Should a stenographer accept attention from a business manager who is married, such as escorting her to car, luncheons and sending her flowers, and she in return making him presents?

I am broad enough to think this can be done and no real harm result.

No, I am not jealous, but I would like to protect them both from criticism.

What should a wife do in a case like this? If I spoke to either they would think I was jealous, and that is what I want to avoid.

I have read the many beautiful things you have written, and know you have helped so many to master conditions. Z. W. J.

So your heart aches and you're afraid to let your husband know it for fear he'll think you are jealous?

What kind of a husband is this of yours, anyhow? Didn't he promise to love, cherish, and protect you all your life? And how many times did he tell you before you were married that he would never let the softest zephyr that ever breathed blow too hard upon you? And one who takes his stenographer to luncheon and gives her flowers and takes presents from her, and you're so afraid of him you don't dare tell him that he's breaking your heart? Nice, agreeable man he must be.

Jealous? Of course your are jealous; you'd be a blind fool if you were not. Jealous? I'd let that husband know I was jealous, and let him know it without a minute's delay, either.

Tell him that you are very miserable, and that you don't believe he wants you to be that. Tell him you want him to keep away from the woman who is making all this trouble, and to keep a long ways away from her, too.

There's no use making a scene or being tragic over the affair. There probably isn't a bit of real harm in it—yet. Make it your business to see that there is no harm in it any time.

You may do that husband of yours the favor of his life by putting a stop to this affair right now. He may have blundered into it blindly. The woman hasn't.

Women know when they are doing the wrong thing, and no woman ever lived so stupid that she doesn't know that she has no business alienating a man from his wife.

The sort of woman who will encourage a man to do things she knows will make his wife unhappy will make that very same man more than a trifle unhappy when she gets a few of his letters tucked tenderly away at her lawyer's.

Serious? Bless you, no; it can't be serious yet. It's your business to see that it doesn't get serious. Poor man, it isn't fair to let him drift along straight into serious trouble and never lift a finger to help him.

All men are fools where women are concerned. You to one that little stenographer is making your husband think he's sorry for her, and he feels noble and generous and broad-minded whenever he buys her a bunch of posies.

"It's good for a man to feel like that. Help him to feel that way about you. You are little and helpless and loving and lonely, too; and oh, how you do love posies.

Don't let that helpless man of yours get so far away you can't call him back. He's drifting, drifting. Look out, he'll get into deep water soon, and maybe he can't swim. Give him a few lessons in the art before he drowns before your very eyes.

The other woman? What shall you say to her?

Not one word. Not one syllable. Smile like the pleasantest kind of a Cheshire cat every time you meet her. It won't be long before she'll begin to know why you smile.

Don't bother with her. She can swim all right, and dive, too, very prettily, no doubt, or she wouldn't be wearing such an attractive bathing suit, do you think?

Why the Butcher Had the Cleanest Market Stall.

Mrs. Smith—"Really, Mr. Slaughter, I think you have the most inviting and appetizing stall in the market—always so clean and white. You must use a brand new set of cloths and aprons every morning."

Mr. Slaughter—"Oh, no ma'am—at least not any more. Anty Drudge showed my wife how she could wash all the blood stains out with cool or lukewarm water and Fels-Naptha soap."

Anty Drudge—"Yes, Mr. Slaughter, and if you ask your wife, she will tell you that washing clothes with Fels-Naptha in the Fels-Naptha way is easier and better than any other way."

If you do your wash the Fels-Naptha way, you won't have to set the alarm two hours ahead for Monday morning.

Get up the same as other mornings and put the Fels-Naptha to work.

You'll get the wash out of the way in just about half the time.

That's not the best part of it either. With Fels-Naptha, there's no boiling and no hard rubbing.

You won't have to spend hours over a hot stove poking and stirring a boiler full of clothes with a broomstick.

That's all been done away with—completely wiped out as though it never existed.

Think what a fine thing it is to have nice, clean, snow-white clothes, without ugly streaks and yellow spots.

Almost too good to be true.

But Fels-Naptha is doing it in myriads of homes every week.

And it does it with cool or lukewarm water.

Follow the easy directions on the red and green wrapper. Use any time of the year.

HICTANER

The Man That Lived in the Water—One of the Strangest Stories Ever Written

By Jean de la Hire

TO-DAY'S INSTALMENT

Copyright, 1911, by American-Journal-Examiner

THE two officers withdrew from the rail and began an inspection of the deck of their Cyclone. The torpedo tubes were uncovered and loaded. The men were ordered to their posts ready to respond to the cries of the watch and to shoot anything which rose to the surface of the water.

A strict order had been given not to notice any sign of truce or peace, and Hictaner showed himself with the dolgates' white flag, he was to be shot immediately.

The time for negotiating was passed, and the only object of the entire fleet was death to the enemy.

Their inspection finished, the two officers returned to the railing of the after deck once more.

The sea was growing heavier and heavier and the torpedo boat, often swept from stem to stern, was bounding through the water.

The waves made a furious intermittent uproar, but the breeze was weak and the sky serene. It was necessary that the young men prop themselves solidly on their outspread legs and clutch the rail in their hands.

"This beastly motion," said Sainte-Claire, "must be the tag end of a storm which kicked up a fuss yesterday in the Gulf of Aden.

The Message Delivered

"Yes, probably," said Cheerat indifferently.

As he spoke the words a shrill whistle rent the air and what seemed to be a meteor rose from the water on the port side and passed over the torpedo, falling into the sea at starboard in a fantastic splash of spray.

At the same moment a cry of pain was heard and a sailor fell bleeding from his forehead.

The two officers and the sailors rushed to the man's side. He was found to have an open wound in his forehead at the edge of his hair. He was dazed and rolled his haggard eyes.

"A shot; a shot!" he repeated.

"Commotion!" said a sailor, who presented a tube of shining metal to Cheerat. This most unexpected incident had lasted less than a minute.

It took Cheerat even less time to regain his composure.

"It is Hictaner," he said, looking at the metal box which had arrived in so sudden a fashion. "It is Hictaner who started over us and threw this to Sainte-Claire.

Put about and go to Aden at full speed. There is nothing more to be done here."

The wounded man's forehead had been already bandaged.

He returned to his post. Cheerat went to his cabin. Sainte-Claire put about and sent the same orders to the Swift.

Two hours later the French torpedo and the English destroyer entered the port of Aden.

In the lower bay of Aden a number of cruisers were already at anchor, coaling up. They were getting ready to leave at once to give way to others.

In accordance with orders received in anticipation of what had passed, Commander de Cheerat went to the semaphore in all haste to give the necessary signals. All vessels, upon leaving the port, were to take a place in the bay of Aden, designated in advance, and there to await the definite orders of the two high admirals.

Seventeen Admirals

The Cyclone and the Swift then left Aden and proceeded toward the Red Sea to meet the Dreadnaught and the Republique.

The day after April 15, preceded by the Swift and the Cyclone, the two great cruisers entered the Gulf of Aden.

At 10 o'clock in the morning a council of war met aboard the Dreadnaught. Besides the admirals, there were seventeen admirals, representing seventeen navies by which half participated in the forming of the world fleet. Louis de Cheerat was also present.

The ultimatum was read in French, which Pulbert had used, and which was the official language of the seventeen admirals.

Before reading it, M. De Cheerat had reported the circumstances of the arrival of the silver box aboard the Cyclone.

Admiral Beresford rose and said:

"Gentlemen, the bad faith of this document is shown in its three signatures.

The whole world knows that Molastic is at the Lost Isle. We cannot give battle since she is not in our power.

"My advice is that we proceed, without further shifting, to rid the world of this trio of pirates."

"It is also my advice," said Admiral Getinet.

"And mine," echoed Severac.

Each admiral present spoke the same words.

Therefore, an attack on the Lost Isle was decided upon.

"Gentlemen," then said Admiral Beresford, "you will each go to your ship to confirm the order to concentrate to the east of Socotoro."

Preparing for Battle

The admirals arose.

"As for Monsieur Charles Severac," added the English admiral, "the must not expose himself to the first attacks of the enemy by staying aboard a large cruiser.

"It is evident that Hictaner will strike the first blow at the largest vessels of the fleet.

"Therefore, in my estimation, Monsieur Severac and his electric mirror will be safer and can be of greater service by going aboard a destroyer or a torpedo boat. They are more rapid than the cruisers and may have a chance to pass unperceived.

"Agreed; agreed!" cried all the admirals.

"As for his course during the battle, we will leave Monsieur Severac free to decide for himself, convinced that he will act for the best interest of the civilized world and the peace of the fleet."

"Monsieur Severac knows the names of the best of our destroyers and torpedoes. He may choose that upon which he wishes to embark and will be granted there the prerogatives and powers of an absolute commander without hindrance."

"Yes! yes! Let him choose!"

All eyes were turned toward Severac.

The former, anarchist reflected a moment, then said simply:

"I will go aboard the torpedo boat Cyclone."

Immediately Admiral Germinet beckoned to M. De Cheerat, who stood near, and presented M. Severac to him.

"Monsieur, he said, "here is your chief. You will take your orders from him alone, and you will be answerable to him for the way you carry them out."

Monsieur De Cheerat bowed.

HOW TO SELECT SERVANTS BY THEIR FACES

Cooks must have brains; deep-set eyes, square forehead, square chin.

Scrubbers must have stamina—the coarser fibre shows in the face.

Housemaid—Eyes small and bright, mouth and chin wide.

Thin, tight mouths are a sign of cruelty and coldness.

Lying and deceit are indicated by Mephistopherian eyes and eyebrows.

Long, narrow nostrils denote artistic.

HERSHFIELD

Bravely Claude and his beautiful Rosamond, with the famous war correspondent, Reckless Hardy Shayne, to advise them, prepare to defend the trench against the entire Turkish army. It is a situation that would appall the stoutest heart, but Claude does not know what fear is, except where Rosamond is concerned.

As the Turks, owing to the backward state of their civilization, have no aeroplanes, they are using a kite to carry a message to the besieged party. It is an old device, still useful in some cases. Claude believes that the kite is a token of surrender, but Desmond knows the character of the Turks too well for that.

Claude calmly endeavors to read the message on the kite. As he cannot read Arabic, his task is more or less hopeless. Few of us can read Arabic at that, but a man mingling so much in Tripolitan affairs might be expected to be versed in studying it. In the meantime Desmond is getting a telephone message from his pals.

To the waiting Turks comes the welcome news that the trench is manned by only three persons, and one of them a woman. Away go the Turkish soldiers on a desperate charge, sure that they are sure the resistance will be trifling. It is easier to be brave when you have a pretty good hunch that you'll win.

Overpowered by the cruel and brutal soldiery, the lovers fall into the hands of their foes. Reckless is not made a captive, as the Turks want to see an article on the paper-collaring charge. Desmond is gleefully contemplating the revenge that will now be his as soon as the captives reach the Turkish lines.

"I'm the boy!" cries Desperate Desmond, "but I couldn't get away with Claude's task." Claude has to run a gauntlet of field guns, while Desmond forces Rosamond to look at her lover's doom. Unless the aim of the Turks is very bad, tomorrow's pictures apparently must record Claude's death.

Grasping the Moral

THE street-corner orator had gathered around him a group of urchins. Why they listened so attentively he didn't understand; nor probably did they know themselves. Simply nothing doing.

But the orator took full advantage of his opportunity, and delivered an improving lecture on the value of kindness to dumb animals.

At the end he sought for some illustration to point the moral and adorn the tale.

It was there at hand. Across the way walked a lady, leading two little dogs in leash. The one was black, and the other white.

"Now," exclaimed the tub-thumper, "after what I have said, supposing those two dear little dogs were to start fighting—what would be the first thing you would do?"

No answer came at first, but one little girl turned to look at the dogs critically and thoughtfully.

"Well," he prompted at last, "what would you do?"

"I think I'd bet five cents on the little black one!"

PART TWO—(Continued)

SHE smiled, opening her eyes and looking out toward the fire. The solution she sought had come to her, and had brought healing in its wings.

It was raining with a drenching persistency, as it had rained for a week past.

Kitty, moving serenely through the throng, a tall slim figure whose umbrella imperilled no one, found herself the general object of much aggressive malice. She could have chosen no greater test of the cost of personal discomfort of a descent into the arena of the world of poverty from which she had so long held aloof than this walk up Knightsbridge and thence past Princes Gate and the desolate stretch of the drenched park (vide to her right.

Smile Crept to Lips

A little smile crept about her lips. It was well she could think so agreeably of Poplar since for some unknown period it was likely to be her home, she reflected, as she turned under the great archway leading to the block of flats where the liveried porter hurried forward in amazed concern to relieve her of the monstrous umbrella, a little spilt about the seams, but possessing a fine stout crook handle, that she had borrowed from the old Irish housekeeper of the presbytery in Lovegrove lane.

And not even when the lift shot her up to the fourth story, and she entered the fairyland region of her own home, did her heart fail her. That was impossible—she had left her heart behind her—keeping guard over a man whose mind and memory had fo'ed him, who was passing through [illegible] of his world, scourged by a [illegible] remorse all the more terrible and poignant because of its vagueness.

She had not seen her husband again but she had heard much news of him through the priest. Conrad Tring, at Father Arm strong's suggestion, had not again tried to stir up the pools of memory in the man who had been his friend. Indeed, Kitty had not been down in Poplar until to-day since that first terrible visit; she had waited until she was physically well again before she went to lay the plan that had come to her as an inspiration before the priest.

Father Armstrong had listened in comprehending silence while she stated it.

"If I cannot raise him to my level I shall descend to his," she told him. "I must win him again—how, or in what manner, I do not care. I shall come here and live as he lives. His interests shall be my interests—his world my world, since he is my world. Perhaps God will accept this as atonement—God who once seemed to throw back my penitence in my face. . . ."

No Panic in Arcady

"This will be no picnic in Arcady, my dear child," he said, and as he spoke there was a light in his eyes that had never shone there when he spoke to the woman Conrad Tring had married. "It will mean hardness of every sordid kind —rough clothes, rough food, rough companions — an almost incomprehensible language. The ladies of the settlement and the Sisters of Charity at Notre Dame will live in purple and fine linen compared to you, you know. They will live with and for the people. You will have to be one of the people."

"Dear father, didn't I tell you that was what I intended to become?" Kitty cried, with a sort of loving impatience. "Father, I have thought everything out, and I shall succeed. You may trust me to succeed; you'll promise me to pray for that!"

He took her hands and pressed them gently.

"Dear child, it is woefully easy to be wise after the event," he said; "but if you had confided in me on that far-off day when we first met how well it would have been."

Here, standing in the softly tempered lights of the bedroom in the big, expensive flat in the heart of London's playground, she echoed the words bitterly.

That night she dined in state. Laurence Baring dined with her, as he did several times in every week. The world might think what it would of their friendship, the man and the woman themselves knew on what foundation it stood—by what it had been cemented in those awful hours of waiting while the glare of the burning of Nokyoro reddened the sky.

Baring had heard nothing of the man in Poplar, no hint of the amazing resurrection that had changed the whole face of the world for her, and he must never know—unless Kitty told him herself.

But, unconsciously, her manner told the man who loved her something. Nothing that touched, however remotely, on the truth, but something that left an indefinable sense of dread in his heart.

Across the lights and flowers of the table she caught his eyes fixed on her with a wondering look, and answered their challenge by an indirect question.

"You're staring at me very rudely—do you realise that, Laurence?"

Kitty and Laurence

"Am I? Then it is a tribute to the fine, unspoiled natural state of my manners," he said. "For you're a sight for the gods to stare at. What happened during your illness, Mrs. Saxe? Or was it merely a polite little fiction invented to cover a visit to some magical beauty doctor?"

"Am I looking well?" Kitty blushed like a girl. She was glad of the compliment to her looks, that interested her once again because they might so soon give joy to the man for whom they had bloomed to fruition. "I'm afraid you're flattering me. Or my jewels add a luster to my appearance that is quite deceptive."

"You've got on a good many jewels, certainly," Baring said in his direct way. "Are you going on to some function afterwards?"

"An extraordinary function," she said. "I'll have to send you away very early to-night. I have my own function to attend; and, besides that, I am going away."

"Going away—that's good hearing," he said, but there was disappointment in his voice for her woman's ears to hear. "Lucky person—I wish I could leave this City of Dreadful Night and seek some place of the Sun."

Raised His Glass

"Yes, I am a much-to-be-envied person," Kitty said.

"You are more to be envied than you imagine," he said. "Only deliberately you pursue shadows and shut out the light and the air and the sunshine of life from you. . . ."

She looked at him for a moment in silence, as though pondering his words then smiled.

"That's true—of the past," she said, "and utterly untrue of the future. After to-night I am going to fling wide the doors and windows of my house of life to admit new experiences. The shadows are to flee away and a new day is going to break. Wish that true for me, Laurence."

He laughed and raised his glass.

"I drink to the new high hope," he said, and felt the blood throb and return in his heart with a strange, sweet hope.

They took coffee at the table and she smoked a cigarette with him, the first she had smoked since her return to England.

"I must make a little fete of our last evening together," she said. And she was very kind to him, dangerously kind, as she would have known if her eyes had not been blinded to everything save the one inner vision.

"You will give me your address. I may write to you, of course," Baring said as he stood up to go, for with a capriciousness unusual in her she had dismissed him suddenly and summarily.

"My address——" Kitty's lips curved faintly. Here—that's safest. Letters will be forwarded. You may write, but not too often, and please—never expect me to answer letters." She held out her hand, and as he took it she looked for the first time that night, seemingly, into those faithful eyes and read the pain there.

"I May Depend on You"

"And if I need you—if the shadows crowd in again through the open windows and doors and blot out the sunlight, I may depend on you, I know that," she said, "And, selfish woman that I am, I shall draw on your friendship, oh, best of friends, and with confidence!"

"When you speak like that you make me feel that only the most dire straits could compel you to send a cry for help," he said—his lips smiled, but his eyes were very grave—"and, if that is so, well, I hope that your silence may remain unbroken so far as I am concerned."

It was not true; and they both knew it —the woman with so thorough a comprehension of all that was in his heart that it made her selfishly glad to part the sooner with him and bear the door of fate that clung behind him, and the still summons of the lift boy came through the silence telling her that he had gone.

But she waited to hear them as one waits to hear and see the last of a friend.

"For it seems to me that he has gone out of my life to-night—forever," she said —"to-night I have to say good-by to all the old life—to-night I must be born anew."

She returned to the drawing room and gave an order to a servant, then went straight to her bedroom and locked the door on the world.

In one corner of the great room stood a pier glass in an elaborately carved frame. Lights sprang into being about it at the touch of her fingers, showing herself as she stood there looking at her reflection with fever-bright eyes.

Tall and slim and white and beautiful she saw herself to-night through the eyes of a stranger, or a disembodied spirit might look with grave, dispassionate eye on its empty house of clay. Her white neck and breast rose dazzling from the sombre black sheath of the clinging dress; the jewels that decked them twinkled back at her like beautiful, malicious eyes. She had several years since that night at Nokyoro that had merged into the everlasting night of her sorrow; now, seeing them once again, gathering, as jewels do, light and color and beauty from their contact with her white flesh, she knew that she loved them.

The faintest smile moved her white, thing akin to a sense of shame. She put up eager hands and tore the glittering things from her neck, ruthlessly dragged at wedlike chains and delicate clasps and cast them altogether, milky pearls and glittering gems, not into separate cases, but into one long compartment of her jewel case and turned the key on them.

Returning to the glass she solemnly brushed and contorted her hair into an elaborate imitation of the Poplar girl's strange coiffure.

"Oh, Jack . . ." As she looked at herself she spoke aloud and her low voice trembled between tears and laughter. "If you only knew, how screamingly funny you would think it. And it is funny, mad by funny, I know that. Only—only, for some extraordinary reason I can't quite appreciate the humor of it."

She turned away from the glass, wiping back the ingrain tears from her eyelashes.

Real Fishing

HE was intensely proud of his new country cottage, and begged various friends to visit him. To each he gave an excellent motive why that particular friend would find a week-end there ideal.

When he asked his angling friend he told him of the charms of a certain stream that ran near by.

"Bites there as many fish there?" asked the follower of Walton.

"Thousands of 'em!" was the enthusiastic answer.

"Um! Do they bite well?" pursued the doubtful one.

"Bite!" The owner of the cottage was astounded. "Why, man, they're absolutely vicious! Honestly, when you go fishing there you'll have to take a tree when you bait the hook! Terrible biters!"

KIPLING TO AID STATUE FUND

Citizens of Salem are behind the movement, they planning a statue in memory of their great fellow citizen. Plans have been made by Hela L. Pratt, the sculptor, for a bronze side statue of Hawthorne seated in a chair, looking out to sea.

It is planned to raise a fund of $50,000 for the statue and for a suitable site.

Salem does not itself feel entirely equal to the task. A committee there has secured between $10,000 and $12,000 in money and pledges, and intends now to appeal to the country for the rest. A large honorary committee, on which Mr. Kipling is vice-president, is organizing the work of appeal.

NAMES BRIBER IN BOMB CASE

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 13.—A court trial, as sensational as the famous McNamara dynamiting case, is likely to be the sequel of the big labor trial. The government declares it has the evidence to convict in the bribery charges it has made.

It was made public to-day that Vealmear George Lockwood told District Attorney Fredericks that C. E. White is the man who gave him a bribe to vote for acquittal of the McNamaras, and to hang the jury if other members voted to convict.

The prosecutor for the State has $4,000 in big bills as evidence that an attempt was made to corrupt the jury before the McNamaras confessed to dynamiting the Times building and to other crimes. White is under arrest.

Lockwood told the district attorney of an attempt to bribe him and part of the $4,000 is said to be the $500 which was handed to him after he had informed the District Attorney of what was going on.

SANTA CLAUS TAKES TO AUTO

By J. C. KERRISON

In the Massachusetts avenue display window of the United Motor Boston Company Santa Claus is holding daily receptions. The genial giver of gifts is seated in the driver's seat of a high-speed Maxwell touring car loaded to the brim with Christmas presents for the children.

Santa Claus is just as cheerful in his up-to-date method of locomotion as if he were driving the historic and familiar reindeer—in fact, if anything, he is a little happier, as the heavy banks of snow and the green foliage around him seem not to interfere with his progress in the least, and he is especially happy over the fact that with his car he is to make happy the hearts of many children on his way. Several artistic reproductions of the thousands who daily pass the window.

The display of gifts is a display of gifts in fact as well as in name—for a week from next Saturday evening, Santa Claus will leave his present abiding place, get under way and leave one-half of those toys and playthings at the Children's Mission on No. 27 Tremont street, and from there will go to the Boston Dispensary at No. 25 Bennett street, leaving the remainder of his gifts, and thereby making happy the hearts of the little children of those two institutions.

Manager L. S. Perry of the Maxwell Company was thoughtful enough to evolve the composition of the gifts, and everyone concedes that it was a decidedly happy thought on his part.

One of the pleasant features of the recent banquet of the Bay State Automobile Association was the fact that it brought together the first time in many years the chief organizers and the prime movers of the organization, which has since achieved fame and influence in the motoring world.

Nine years ago, E. A. Gilmore, Harry Fiedler, C. W. Burke and the writer evolved the idea that a club such as the Bay State would prove of inestimable value to local motorists. These were the days of the "Tuff Nuts." Their efforts resulted in the organization of the Bay State, and their ideas were so well conceived as to merit the support and approval of the motorists in general.

They, together with L. R. Speare, C. E. Fay and H. L. Bowden, were the organizers of the present successful club, and how faithful these men have been to the organization was abundantly proven on Monday evening, when all, save Mr. Bowden, were present. Everyone of these seven gentlemen has driven on the club the best of his efforts, each having been a member of the Board of Directors for several years in the past.

Mr. Speare was the first president, and the only man other than Mr. Gilmore who has filled the presidential chair.

Mr. Speare's name came from Springfield and W. W. Burke came on from Worcester just to meet the old boys and do what they could to keep the Bay State spirit alive. Their presence was considered at least as a tribute of affection for the old organization. It matters more, although it certainly indicates that once a member of the club, always a member.

Outside of the two big automobile shows that will be held in the Garden and Palaces, the importers will hold a show of foreign cars which will be called the Importers' Salon, in the grand ball room of the Hotel Astor.

More than seventeen foreign cars will be shown from January 2 to 10, inclusive, and it will take a mighty big car with one exception now represented in this country.

S. Kjeldsen, who managed the salon so successfully last year, will have charge of the exhibition this year. As the "Salon" lasts but one week, the forthcoming exhibition of foreign cars will partake more the character of a drawing room affair than an industrial show.

Announcement is made of important changes in the Lozier Motor Company. The growth of the business has made it necessary to further divide the responsibilities and to create the position of general manager. To this place has been appointed Fred C. Chandler, who has been identified with the Loziers in their various lines of business for twenty-one years. John G. Perrin, who has also been identified with the Loziers in various capacities for seventeen years, has been appointed vice-president and chief engineer. Charles Ellis Emlen, formerly in charge of advertising of the Lozier Company, succeeds Mr. Chandler as sales manager. Russell E. Benner assumes the duties of production manager.

Prevention of Accidents

The serious injury or death of a small child as result of a trolley accident arouses the keenest sympathy of the public, and all connected with our Company.

As a rule, lack of care by the one injured or whose life was lost is the cause of the calamity, but unfortunately this knowledge brings consolation to no one except, perhaps, the motorman who earnestly endeavored to prevent the accident without success.

WE BELIEVE THE SITUATION DEMANDS THE CO-OPERATION OF THE PUBLIC AND THE COMPANY. IT IS TO THE COMMON ADVANTAGE OF ALL CONCERNED TO PREVENT SUCH ACCIDENTS.

ALL ACCIDENTS DUE TO CARELESSNESS ARE AVOIDABLE.

HOW CAN THE NUMBER OF SUCH ACCIDENTS BE REDUCED?

How is it possible to induce other users of the highway to be more careful of their own safety? This problem the Company is earnestly endeavoring to solve.

All have equal rights in the use of the streets. The highways are the great avenues of commerce and intercourse. Modern methods of business and civilization necessarily require the use of street cars, automobiles and horse-drawn vehicles. They have become bodily absorbed in communities. Life in a modern city would be difficult if not impossible without them. They must necessarily be used, but they all involve a varying element of danger.

Adults realize the danger, but CHILDREN do not always, unless they are INSTRUCTED AND CAUTIONED.

We earnestly desire to co-operate with those who have the custody and instruction of children in an effort to COMPEL THE CHILDREN TO THINK AND REMEMBER.

With this object in view we offer 204 prizes to be paid in Gold. These prizes are offered for verses in rhyme of not over twenty-four lines for the entire composition, concerning caution in the streets, particularly relating to street cars.

All boys and girls in the High Schools or in Private Schools of a similar grade, who live in the cities and towns in which we operate, may compete.

The one awarded the first prize will be printed in attractive form for circulation. The next one hundred will be published in the Grammar, Primary and Kindergarten grades in the Metropolitan district. Other prize-winning verses may be printed and circulated from time to time.

$50 in gold for the First Prize
$25 in gold for the Second Prize
$15 in gold for the Third Prize
$10 in gold for the Fourth Prize and $2.50 in gold for the next 200 submitted.

Send all verses to the Boston Elevated Railway Company, Room 210, 101 Milk Street, Boston, Mass.

Write "Verse Competition" in the lower left-hand corner of your envelope.

Write on a single sheet of paper and on one side only.

On the back of the sheet write the name and address of the author, and the name and grade of the school.

Clearness and simplicity of expression and good English will be considered in determining the choice.

All manuscripts must be received at the above address before 9:00 A. M., January 1, 1912.

Certain officials of the Company, designated by the management, will act as judges and as soon as practicable the successful winners will be announced through the newspapers, as well as by personal notification.

China's Four Hundred Million Awaken from Opium Steeped Sleep of Centuries

Rebellion in China, Conducted Strictly Under the Rules of Civilized Warfare, Surprises the World with Evidence of Progress Made in This Most Oriental of Empires

Copyright, 1911, by American-Journal Examiner

With the rebels in China proclaiming a republic and carrying on a revolution with a scrupulous attention to the rules—except as to the Manchus—of civilized warfare, the awakening of China, which we used to hear about a few years ago as something that might come along in a century or so, is apparently at hand.

It is only yesterday in the history of nations that the Chinese army wore grotesque masks to frighten the enemy with the ferocity of their appearance, and Japan, in the very infancy of its modern development, went through the massed Chinese defense like a trained football squad through a band of schoolboys.

Now we have Chinese rebels performing martial feats, exercising educated strategy, taking city after city and province after province, and all with no more general disorganization, as far as can be judged from the dispatches, than would accompany the same measure of revolution in the most modern nation in the world.

The military aspect of the revolution is sufficiently startling, but it is still more surprising to read the proclamations of the rebels, proclaiming respect for the lives and property of aliens and pledging the new government to observe the obligations of the old concerning loans, indemnities, etc.

All of this in a country that ten years ago had a monster uprising, the watchword of which was "death to all foreign devils," and that assumed a magnitude that called for the intervention of the allied troops of all the world.

The difference between the Boxer uprising and the revolution against the Manchus is the difference between the jungle and the cultivated field.

Ten years ago, outside of the Chinese capitals, the idea of obligations to foreigners had never penetrated. We were even told that when a prince was sent to Germany to make Chinese apology for the murder of a Minister, it was officially given out in the interior of China that this was a delegation sent to accept the submission of the German Emperor, who had besought pardon for affronting the Son of Heaven in the Forbidden City.

Democracy in China sounds as farfetched as asceticism among the savages of the remote Congo.

It only goes to show how rapid has been the education of the world and how it has penetrated in recent years.

When we saw Japan throw off the mantle of ancient insularity and thrash Russia in the most approved Occidental manner, it gave us an admiring shock.

When sleepy, sulky, savage Turkey arose against the sacred Commander of the Faithful, spilled him off the throne and put another man in his place we thought that modernism had reached its limit.

But now it is China, with its four or five hundred millions that we have been accustomed to think of as steeped in the deadest opium sleep; that was supposed to be simply lying supine in Asia until such time as Russia, Germany, England and Japan should decide among themselves how it should be dismembered.

So sudden has been this upheaval, so strange is the rebels' attitude of political wisdom and appreciation of foreign relations, that the world does not yet quite believe it.

Even the presence of our familiar friend Wu, who was in Washington so long, among the rebel officials has not convinced the world that the army that swept out of the provinces, and is preparing to take Pekin, is other than a horde of barbarians such as the guns of civilized nations have had to scatter repeatedly.

So we see the warships headed for Chinese waters, and the marines landing, and preparations being made to protect embassies and missionaries, concessionaires and merchants against the fury of Chinese riots.

These precautions are right, and in all probability are necessary. But whether the rebel chiefs are able to control their followers this time or not, the notice to the world is plain:

Progress has come to China.

From now on the nations will have to consider another China than the sleepy, cruel old dragon that has been so long the guardian of the last abode of mystery.

MY HUSBAND MAY BE DEAD OR LOST IN THE SNOW! YOU MUST FIND HIM!
QUICK WATSO! EVERY MOMENT COUNTS.
MY HUSBAND FOUND AN APPARENTLY FROZEN MAN IN THE SNOW HERE IN FRONT OF THE HOUSE, AND SAID HE WOULD CARRY HIM TO THE NEAREST DOCTOR'S. HE NEVER GOT THERE, AND THAT WAS 5 HOURS AGO!
STRANGE!
HERE WATSO, YOU SEE BY THE SINGLE LINE OF FOOTPRINTS THAT THE FROZEN MAN WAS BLIND. CARRIED ALL RIGHT!
A KINDHEARTED FELLOW, BY JOVE!
BUT HE DIDN'T CARRY HIM FAR. FOR HERE, JUST AROUND THE CORNER FROM THE HOUSE, THE 2 SETS OF FOOTPRINTS SHOW ME THE PATIENT REVIVED SUFFICIENTLY TO WALK!
IN ALL MY MEDICAL PRACTICE, I NEVER SAW SUCH A QUICK RECOVERY
DOCTOR
AND YOU SEE, THEIR STEPS LEAD RIGHT PAST THE DOCTOR'S — COME, WE'LL FOLLOW THE TRAIL AND YOU SHALL SEE THE FROZEN MAN A VERY JOYOUS CONVALESCENT!
WHEN YOU LAY DOWN IN THE SNOW, MY WIFE THOUGHT YOU WERE FROZEN!, IT WORKED LIKE A CHARM AND I GUESS I'LL STAY HERE IN THE DOCTOR'S A BIT LONGER!
A HARMLESS LITTLE BLUFF OF OUR OLD FRIEND HEREDKO'S

All Success to Girl Scout Movement; It Guards, Directs and Instructs Wisely

This Organization, First Adopted in the Western States, Has Lately Been Taken Up in the East, and Offers Better Results for the Race in the Way of Employment for Young Girls Than Anything Else.

WHEN I first heard the name of Girl Scouts for an organization it did not appeal to me.

In fact, it repelled me.

The word "scout" suggests war, danger, exposure to all kinds of unpleasant experiences, and these things do not seem to be a part of the life Nature intended for woman.

To my mind woman's real sphere is wholly apart from that of man. And so are her sports and recreations quite from her younger ways.

It is far more beautiful, far more ideal for more attractive than the active of the sun.

It is the wonderful world of the Home; away from the shop, the office, the factory, the lawyers' or judges, or doctors' or politicians' domain.

It is a world of busy activities, of careful detail, of infinite possibilities and of undeveloped mines of pleasure and profit to the individual and the race.

Yet, under existing conditions, the only way to have a home for a large majority of women is to GO OUT OF THE HOME AND WORK FOR IT.

And once working out of the home it is imperative that woman should have a voice in the making of the country's laws.

But to return to our Girl Scouts.

Investigation proved that the organization was only adventurous and masculine in name.

Its blends are wholly feminine and wholesome.

Ban on Rowdyism

This organization was founded at Des Moines, Iowa, late in the Summer of 1910 by Clara Adelia Lisctor Lane, daughter of Colonel and Mrs. William R. Lisctor-Lane. Inasmuch as it was the first organization of the kind for girls in the United States, it created great interest from the first, and has been eagerly watched by persons interested in promoting the good of the girl.

The work embraces cooking, sewing, housekeeping, first aid, nursing, nature study and the doing of good turns. There are out-door sports, of course, but these are of such a nature that they will not detract from the refinement or womanliness of the girl. A strict ban is put on all forms of rowdyism.

The work is destined to create a revolution in dress, too, for the Girl Scouts may not lace. Not only that, but they are asked to discard all forms of artificiality, as rats, rouge, paint, powder, false hair, pads and the numerous other things that comprise such an important part of the make-up of the women to-day.

Girl Scout work provides the means of learning the way to attain, and helps in attainment. It gives the girl what she needs to count out her life and make her self supporting. It does not take her from her home, but, rather, gives her interests that place a new poise on home life and make it desirable.

The work is conducted in a manner similar to the Boy Scout work. Troops are formed, consisting of one or more patrols; each patrol consists of eight or more girls from eleven to eighteen years of age.

Troops meet at times and places determined by themselves for instruction. They are under the direct supervision of a scout master, who teaches the requirements or secures some other person competent to do so.

Troops in 22 States

Honors are given for work well done in any one line that suit, make the girl self supporting wife special honors are given for work in any line that will place a girl in a position of trust and honor.

The work starts I with one troop, and grew until now troops are organized or in the process of organization in twenty-two different States. Possibly one of the greatest recommendations which it possesses is the fact that a large number of schools have arranged to give the work either entirely or in part, in their schools during the coming year. This plan was first adopted in the Western States, but lately has been taken up in the East also.

A National Council has charge of the work. This council is composed of many persons of national and even international prominence, all interested in seeking the highest good of the girl.

I do not know of anything which seems to offer better results for the race in the way of employment of the time of young girls than this organization of the Girl Scouts.

America is the home of independence and freedom for women, and in the carrying out of these national ideas lies great danger.

Young girls are not properly guarded, not properly guided. They are allowed to seek their own pleasures and their own companions, of both sexes, and to enjoy themselves as they see fit, while their trusting and unwise parents imagine they will find only normal and moral outlets for their youthful vitality and only think or talk along healthful lines. It would appall the parents of America were they to gather together the girls of the public and high schools from the ages of seven to seventeen and put them through a third degree of investigation regarding their knowledge of modern life, modern society, modern immorals and ancient sins.

All Success to It

Not one girl in one score receives any wise instruction from her mother or guardian before she goes into the public schools. Instruction which if rightly and delicately given acts as a safeguard against evil. Little girls of lamb-like innocence are sent into the world's dark ways without a word from every sacred and vital fact of life in a vile and vulgar manner and there is no one to protect and guard them from vile experience. Some parents have not made them feel that they can come to them in search of knowledge on these subjects, and so the white mind becomes soiled and darkened, which is about the ideal as saw grows into young womanhood and be given leisure and liberty to enjoy herself as she will. The Girl Scout movement offers a protection it offers guardianship, it offers direction and wise instruction.

All success to it.

For Every-Day Favors

I'M thankful for things as they are,
Whatever they happen to be;
They might be made better by far,
But, somehow, they look good to me.
I've as much cause to kick, I suppose,
As any one has, but I won't;
Besides, I'm believing with those Who believe they're well off if they don't.

I've a home and I'm not sick a-bed;
I still have some funds to disburse;
I'm not going to worry my head;
I'm thankful things aren't any worse.
I'm thankful for whatever good
Is mine, though the lump may be small,
I'd make it much more if I could,
I'm thankful, quite thankful. That's all.

PEACE MEETING ENDS IN RIOT

NEW YORK, Dec. 12.—A riotous outbreak interrupted a mass meeting at Carnegie Hall in support of the arbitration treaties which President Taft has proposed with England and France. Twenty-eight reserve policemen were hurried to the hall and eight persons were forcibly ejected.

Th outbreak occurred after Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, had read resolutions urging the Senate to ratify the treaties, and Alfonso G. Kocible of the Gerard American Citizens' League of the State of New York moved that the majority resolution of the United States Senate Committee on Foreign Relations adopted as a substitute for the declarations contained in the Butler resolution.

"This declaration is not a promoter of peace, but a breeder of war," he exclaimed, and words were scarcely out of his mouth when men jumped to either side of the stage and raised their hands in an apparent signal, whereupon pandemonium was let loose in the upper galleries.

Catcalls, yells, groans, and hisses made it impossible for Chairman Joseph H. Choate to preserve order with the meeting. Four hundred prominent men were seated on the platform and they were astounded at the outbreak.

In the midst of the noise Chairman Choate announced that the Butler resolution had been unanimously adopted. The persons in the main part of the auditorium took this as a signal for a counter demonstration, jumped to their feet, shouting their approval and waving their handkerchiefs and hats.

GOOD ROADS MEN PLAN JOINT SESSION

The four largest associations in the United States, all designed to aid in the movement for road improvement, have decided to join forces in holding a great good roads congress next year. As a result of the Congress of the American Association for Highway Improvement and its allied organizations at Richmond, Va., November 20-23, the American Automobile Association, the American Road Builders, and the National Association of Road Machinery and Material Manufacturers, have decided to join their forces with the American Association for Highway Improvement at the next Good Roads Congress.

Each association has delegated two representatives to meet in the Belmont Hotel, New York, on December 27, and draw up tentative plans.

The circulation of the AMERICAN is 300,000 more than its next highest competitor and 100,000 more than all the other evening papers of Boston combined.

GETS DIVORCE IN TWO MINUTES

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—It took a Supreme Court jury just two minutes to grant Mrs. Rae Selwyn a divorce from Vincent Bryan, a song writer.

The plaintiff is a sister of Edward Selwyn, the playwright.

The couple were married eight years ago, and recently the wife began to hear of escapades of her husband and she had detectives follow him.

Bryan is the author of "Please Don't Take Me Home," and when the detectives with Mrs. Bryan and her brother, Max Simon, went to a room in a hotel, where, it is alleged, was a woman also, the defendant assisted in his wife was.

Hello, Bae, you know me, kid;
I'm for you, in everything you do.
But please don't take me home.

PENSION PLAN GOES TO SENATE

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—The House passed the Sherwood Service Pension bill, which would add upward of $40,000,000 to the Government's annual expenditures by granting increased pensions to Civil and Mexican War veterans on the basis of length of service. The vote was 229 to 92, despite the determined opposition of many Democratic leaders.

Secretary of the Interior Fisher has estimated that the bill will add $75,000,000 to the pension roll of the 460,000 veterans eligible to take advantage of its provisions.

FLOWS BUSY; SAP RUNNING IN VERMONT

BRATTLEBORO, Vt., Dec. 13.—Vermont is enjoying one of the prildest Winters for a half-century. In Halifax, about twenty miles from Brattleboro, the warm days have started the maple sap and Patrick Gaffney has made two gallons of syrup from trees near his home. There is no frost in the ground and farmers have been plowing in different parts of the country this week. Unless snow arrives soon the matter of moving lumber and wood from the woods to the railroad will prove serious, however.

CO-EDS APPEAR IN HARVARD PLAY

Three Radcliffe girls appeared in the cast of "The Night Riders," staged by the Harvard Dramatic Club and were enthusiastically received by the university undergraduates.

The girls were Miss Esther Watson, Miss Leslie Burleigh, and Miss Marjorie Smith, each of whom, irrespective of Harvard enthusiasm on the part of the partisan audience, did excellent work.

FANEUIL HALL BAN ON ANCIENTS

The Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company will probably be barred from holdings its annual dinner in Faneuil Hall as a a result of the Boston Art Commission's protest to Mayor Fitzgerald. The Ancients were included in the recommendation of the art experts that all banquets and every kind of gathering calculated to injure the interior of Faneuil Hall, including smoke talks, be prohibited. This rule would also bar the camp fires of Civil War veterans.

Beauty's Expression Lies in Eyebrows

Like a frame to a beautiful painting, thick, glossy eyebrows are a fitting setting for lustrous, sparkling eyes. By the same token, thin, straggly eyebrows mar an otherwise beautiful face. Brushing the eyebrows with a soft brush trains them to grow arch-shaped, and plain pyroxin rubbed on with the finger-tips will make them grow long, thick and lustrous.

Short, thin eyelashes can be made to come in long, thick and silky if pyroxin is applied to lash roots with thumb and forefinger, and brushing gives to them a curl. No harm can result from using pyroxin, but care should be taken and not get any where no hair is wanted. Any druggist can supply pyroxin in 2-ounce original packages, and while the cost is a dollar, it is worth it.

CANARIES AID MINE RESCUERS

BRICEVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 13.—Canary birds made possible the rescue alive of the five men from the Cross Mountain mine. This is the first mine disaster in which these birds have played a saving role, although experiments had been made with them in a number of smaller accidents.

The canaries, which are very sensitive to any atmosphere that will not support life, are carried into the mine by the helmeted rescuers for the purpose of detecting the first signs of poisonous gases.

When the birds show symptoms of dizziness the volunteer rescuers are not allowed to go farther and the helmeted men proceed alone. Bodies found beyond this point are brought back as far as this danger line, whence they are carried out by the volunteers.

Except the expectancy of catching two madmen roaming in the workings, hope of finding more men alive in the mine has vanished. Two miners driven mad from their predicament since the explosion died about the tunnels wildly screaming at the approach of rescuers. Work as they might the helmet men have failed to capture them.

Guided by marks on walls, rescuers took up the clew of one party and followed it through several cavities only to lose it. The men evidently finding one place barring and unbearable wrote on the walls where they were going. This trail has been lost and it is believed the writers are dead.

Thirty-five bodies have been taken out and the rapid work of burial preparations and funeral services went on most of the day.

RUMOR YOUNG'S HOTEL IS TO GO

Rumor, in the real estate circles, says that Young's Hotel is to go and that a huge modern building is to be erected on the site it occupies. These reports declare that a syndicate of wealthy men is behind the project. Arthur H. Bowditch, the architect who designed the Old South building, it is said, is now at work on the plans for the proposed structure.

Whether this building will be a magnificent hotel which will rival the Copley Plaza now being erected in Copley square or an office building, is not definitely stated.

Young's Hotel is the property of the Fifty Associates, and is leased for a term of years to the J. Reed Whipple Company.

Charles E. Cutting, the business head of the Fifty Associates, denied in positive language that the property is to be sold.

The rumor that Young's, the scene of many famous gatherings for two generations, is to be demolished, caused a sensation among real estate men. It is said the scheme was suggested by the erection of the new municipal building on the site of the old courthouse. The idea was at once suggested that there would be a great demand for a large office building close by. The fact that this demand would make it possible to charge heavy office rents and easy to lease every available office space appealed to real estate men.

It was only a few years ago that many thousands of dollars were spent in renovating and altering the internal arrangements of Young's. For many years the dining rooms at Young's have been famous. Politicians and business men have used the hotel as a rendezvous. It is said there have been more important gatherings of "big" people at Young's than in any other hotel in Boston. Thomas W. Lawson directed his brilliant financial campaigns, and, it is reported, wrote "Frenzied Finance" in a room on an upper floor.

In the seventy years since Taft's Coffee House was the noonday mecca for hungry business men the property has undergone a wonderful transformation.

In 1845 George Young took over the coffee house and made a hotel of it. Then, after Mr. Young had organized one of the famous hotels of the country there, J. Reed Whipple, Robert F. Ford, Claude M. Hart, Charles I. Lindsey and others took charge and developed the present Young's Hotel.

Nearly everybody in Boston reads the AMERICAN.

MRS. WIRT DEXTER, ONE OF POURERS AT CHILTON CLUB

MRS WIRT DEXTER

Mrs. Dexter presided at one of the tea tables at meeting of exclusive Women's Club.

"Votes for Women" adorned the program given out at the Chilton Club, when a delightful program of music and song was rendered before a distinctly fashionable audience for the benefit of the Massachusetts Suffrage Association.

Evelyn Scotney sang in place of Miss Jeska Swartz, who was ill. She was refreshingly pretty in her gown of green chiffon and her cap of gold—lace trimmed with rose colored plumes. Her clear, ringing soprano voice was a surprise as well as a delight to all and she was recalled time after time.

Emiliano Renaud was the pianist and his program included Chopin's Mazurka, in D Major; Liszt's Nocturne, No. 3; Schumann's Toccata, op. 7; "Hark, Hark! the lark," Schubert-Liszt; Vecchio Minuetto, Spanduti, and Polonaise, Tschaikowsky-Liszt.

At the conclusion of the program, which was given in the pretty music room, simple in its dress of blue and gold, tea was served both upstairs and down. Mrs. Wirt Dexter, in purple cloth and hat to match, and Mrs. Stanley McCormick, in blue cloth and blue chiffon, with black hat trimmed with white, poured.

BASS OPENS BIG ROAD MEETING

CONCORD, N. H., Dec. 13.—Governor Bass to-day opened the first road conference held under the auspices of the State Highway Department. The session, which was the first of a two-day meeting, was attended by large numbers of State, town and county officials and great enthusiasm was shown along the line of good roads.

Some of the foremost engineers and road experts in the country were present to address the convention. To-day's speaker from Massachusetts was A. W. Dean, chief engineer with the Massachusetts Highway Commission. He touched on the difference between conditions in this State and in Massachusetts, as to traffic and available material, relative results for money expended, and as to whether this State can afford to spend any less per mile than Massachusetts. Other speakers at to-day's session were Councillor J. M. Gile, who discussed New Hampshire's present highway law, and Charles W. Gates, highway commissioner of Vermont, who talked on the construction of Vermont roads.

Tonight at 8 o'clock, the speakers will be Paul D. Sargent, assistant director of public roads, at Washington, who gives an illustrated talk on "The Fundamental Principles of Road Construction," and A. H. Blanchard, consulting engineer of New York city, one of the leading authorities of the United States. His talk will also be illustrated.

To-morrow morning the final session will be address by F. E. Ellis, the Melrose, Mass., contractor, who talks on road building from the standpoint of the contractor; Colonel William D. Sohier, a member of the Massachusetts Highway Commission, who discusses the maintenance of roads, and H. C. Hill, State engineer of New Hampshire.

An exhibition of interest is shown in the basement of the State House in connection with the convention.

Grand High Priest Burrage was unanimously given a third term at the 143th annual convention of the Grand Royal Arch Chapter of Massachusetts held in Joule Hall, Masonic Temple. Two of the district equities of the past year were promoted to the second and third stations, respectively, in the grand capitular body.

DELHI, India, Dec. 13.—The busiest couple in India during the Durbar, are Lord and Lady Hardinge, the viceroy of the colony and his wife, who not only are hosts of King George and Queen Mary, but who also have been delegated by the former to return all of the 240 visits from that number of native princes who called on the King last week.

This matter of the native princes is one of the greatest that England has to meet in this land of difficulties, and to the tact with which Lord Hardinge carries out the instructions of his royal master in returning the visits will depend, in a great measure, the success or non-success of King George's reign in India.

Should Lord Hardinge, through accident, or for any other reason, fail to return one of the visits it would be regarded by the neglected prince as a royal slight and the effects might be far-reaching. It is certain that it would require a movement of soldiers wholly the equivalent principality to undo the damage and even then some form of revenge might be invoked.

Lord Hardinge though, has a record equalled by few of his predecessors for successful negotiations with the native princes. He is highly regarded by them, as is also Lady Hardinge, whose charities are many, and whose beauty and lovable disposition have made her one of the best-liked personages in India.

Doctor's Best Formula

Breaks Severest Cold in a Day and Cures Any Curable Cough.

This has been published here for several winters and has proven the quickest and most reliable formula obtainable for coughs and colds. "From your druggist get two ounces of Glycerine and half an ounce Concentrated Pine compound. Take these two ingredients home and put them into a half pint of good whiskey. Shake it well and take one to two teaspoonfuls after each meal and at bed time. Smaller doses to children according to age. Be sure to get only the genuine Globe Concentrated Pine. Each half ounce bottle comes in a sealed tin screw-top case. Any druggist has it on hand or will quickly get it from his wholesale house. Don't experiment with imitations because of cheapness. It don't pay to fool with a bad cold.

Frost-Bites Here is quick-est and surest cure known for corns, callouses, bunions, frost-bites, sweats and aching feet. Two Tablespoonfuls of Calcrola compound in hot foot-bath, gives instant relief and if repeated daily for a short time permanent cure results. FOR SICK, SOUR, BILIOUS STOMACH, INDIGESTION AND GAS TAKE CASCARETS

That awful sourness, belching of acid and foul gases; that pain in the pit of the stomach, the heartburn, nervousness, nausea, bloating after eating, feeling of fullness, dizziness and sick headache, means indigestion; a disordered stomach which cannot be regulated until you remove the cause. It isn't your stomach's fault. Your stomach is as good as any.

Try Cascarets; they cure indigestion, because they immediately cleanse and regulate the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the decomposed waste matter and poison from the intestines and bowels. Then your stomach trouble is ended forever. A Cascaret tonight will straighten you out by morning—a 10-cent box will keep your entire family feeling good for months. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good, gentle cleansing, too.

Light can't spoil Schlitz in Brown Bottles

It is not enough to make pure beer, it must be kept pure until it is poured into your glass.

Beer is a saccharine product. The slightest taint of impurity injures its healthfulness. Light starts decay even in pure beer. Dark glass, the scientists say, gives protection against light.

Purity above everything else distinguishes Schlitz beer from common beer.

We use the costliest materials — we age Schlitz for months to prevent biliousness—it will not ferment in your stomach.

Schlitz is sent to you in Brown Bottles, thus protecting Schlitz purity from the brewery to your glass.

Without all these precautions no beer can be healthful, and who knowingly would drink beer that was not?

If you knew what we know about beer, you would say, "Schlitz—Schlitz in Brown Bottles."

See that crown or cork is branded "Schlitz."

START $100,000 LOWELL HOME

The new home of President Lowell of Harvard University, on which work is just being started, is to be a handsome red brick structure of the colonial type of architecture, and is expected to add much to the beauty of the university grounds.

It has been unofficially announced that the new home is to cost $85,000, but the impression to be gained from the builders is that the price will be nearer $100,000.

The plans call for a series of large rooms on the first floor—a hall rising up through the three stories, a living room, a dining room, morning room, drawing room and extensive servants' quarters.

EASY TO MAKE, EASY TO TAKE

Simple Home Remedy That Acts Like Magic Cures Colds, Coughs and Catarrh

Mix together in a large bottle a half pint of whiskey, two ounces of glycerine and half an ounce of virgin oil of pine. Shake well and take a teaspoonful every four hours.

Your cold, however severe, will disappear in less than a day. Chronic catarrh will yield promptly to this simple treatment. Rheumatism, leucorrhoea and inflammation of the urinary passages find permanent cure, and the misery of backache and grippe is speedily relieved by the use of this medicine.

The ingredients may be secured at any drug store, but the utmost care should be taken to provide against substitution of some other article of similar name for the pure virgin oil of pine. The only absolutely genuine article is sold in sealed half-ounce packages bearing the name of the Leach Chemical Company, of Cincinnati, Ohio, which is your guarantee of purity and freshness.

HOG BETTER OFF, SAYS DR. WILEY

"It is better to be a hog than a human being, so far as the treatment of tuberculosis in the hands of the state is concerned, from a health point of view," declared Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, chief of the United States Pure Food Bureau, who is investigating pure food conditions in Boston to-day.

He will address the Boston City Club this evening, and will remain here until to-morrow noon.

Dr. Wiley to-day held a number of conferences with Boston merchants and others interested in the Pure Food Bureau and the great work that branch of the service is doing. He sought suggestions relative to the promotion of better sanitary conditions in the transportation of food stuffs across the country, and other matters.

He looked into the affairs of the local Pure Food Bureau in a business way. He conferred with Dr. Bernard H. Smith, in charge of the bureau here, and the inspectors and other attaches.

Commenting upon a Washington dispatch that the Democrats in Washington are hatching a bill to transfer the chemistry bureau, where Dr. Wiley holds forth, from the Department of Agriculture to that of the Treasury, providing thus for a new supporter for him, he remarked:

"No one has consulted me relative to any such move, and I don't believe it is true.

"There is a movement in Washington to consolidate all the activities of the United States government relative to the public health into one large department, which would virtually be the coming of a new department and would give the head a seat in the cabinet.

"This movement has the unanimous support of the committee of 100 business men appointed by the American Association for the Advancement of Science, and both President Taft and I favor such a department."

Dr. Wiley refused to discuss conditions existing in his department relative to any difficulties between Secretary Wilson and himself.

HAVERHILL WOMAN, ON TRIAL TODAY ON A MURDER CHARGE

EMMA MOOSHIAN

HAVERHILL, Dec. 13.—Mrs. Emma E. Mooshian, who formerly lived in Revere, is on trial to-day for the murder of Simon Chilligerian, in a local shoe factory. While she pleaded guilty at a former hearing, of which the trial to-day is a continuance, she says in justification of the deed, "He ruined my life."

Her counsel, former District Attorney W. Scott Peters, asked for the continuance until to-day. It is understood that the defence will not contest the killing. It will claim, as Mrs. Mooshian says, that the dead man ruined her life and home, abandoned her and turned her husband against her, then threatened to kill her.

Her husband, from whom she had been estranged, has come to her defence. It is said that he is going to aid in the plans to free her and will devote all his time and energy and money from custody.

You see the AMERICAN everywhere—in the homes, clubs, restaurants, hotels, cars and boats.

REAL BOSTON BROWN BREAD

Have you found the right recipe? Certainly! That's good. Now, busy wife, if your husband does not give you a good Christmas present for the lovely brown bread which you make for him, we will be mistaken.

You housewives who have not tried any of these recipes had better get busy if you want that Christmas present. Hundreds of recipes are flooding the brown bread editor every day, and the majority of them are the best that can be had in the country. The contestants would confer a great favor upon the editor by writing only on one side of the paper. Here are some of the recipes picked at random:

Two cups of yellow meal, two cups of rye meal, one and one-half teaspoons soda, two-quarters teaspoon salt, one-half cup of molasses, two and one-half cups of cold milk. Mix yellow meal, rye meal, soda and salt thoroughly, then add molasses and milk. Pour into buttered moulds, then put in boiling water for one and one-half hours, take out and bake in hot oven 30 minutes, take out of moulds and serve. MRS. C. J. LUETZENKIRDEN, Moosup, Ct.

Two cups cornmeal, 2 cups wheat flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 teaspoon soda, 1 pint sour milk, 1 cup molasses, ½ cake Fleischmann's yeast, ¼ cup lukewarm water. Sound the cornmeal with the pint of hot water, then mix in the flour, salt and soda. Put the molasses and salt, adding the yeast, dissolved in ¼ cup lukewarm water. Add the soda, also dissolved in ¼ cup lukewarm water. Put this batter in greased moulds, filling each a little over half and let them rise until they are nearly full. Then put the moulds in a pot of boiling water. Boil three hours, take out and bake 15 minutes an hour.

In boiling let the water come up to the moulds two-thirds of their height and when it boils away add more boiling water.

Two cups granulated corn meal, 1 cup graham flour, 1 cup bread flour, 2-3 cup light molasses, 2 1-3 cups cold water, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons soda (pounded). Sift all together twice, then add molasses and water; steam three hours, or four if there is time, in a well buttered tin. Cover closely and have water boiling steadily. A handful of pulled taffy improves it for those who like them.

¶ The poets having done with lambasting Colonel Kipling for his "Recessional of the Species" verses, the naturalists are about to advance upon him. Beginning an article for the Sunday AMERICAN, Dr. William T. Horne-day, director of the New York Zoo, declares with emphasis that "the female of the species is never more deadly than the male." When you read Dr. Hornday's contribution to the Sunday AMERICAN you will surely feel sorry for poor Mr. Kipling, who really didn't know.

SHAKER SHAFT STIRS DOCTORS

The medical profession in Boston is split over the proposal to erect on the Common a monument to Egbert Gillette, the Shaker who put to death a victim suffering from an incurable disease.

The Boston Art Commission, which decides about monuments on the Common, would oppose it. It was learned to-day. Thomas Allen of No. 12 Commonwealth avenue, and who is a member of the commission, said:

"There will be no monument erected to Egbert Gillette on the Common under any condition. That is all I care to say."

There are in Boston many noted physicians and surgeons who favor euthanasia—the putting to death of patients in such cases—and they believe the erection of the proposed monument would greatly help the cause by overcoming public prejudice.

Physicians Oppose Plan.

The majority of the profession here oppose the practice of euthanasia and are, therefore, strongly against the plan to erect the Gillette shaft.

It is expected that at the next meetings of medical societies the matter will be taken up and formal resolutions adopted.

Dr. M. J. Koulkow was among those who voiced protest against the plan to erect such a monument.

"A disease supposed to-day to be incurable may be curable to-morrow," he declared. "Cures for diseases that have baffled the medical profession are being discovered every now and then.

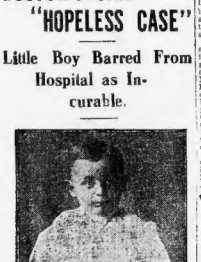
"Then, why should we put to death a person suffering from a supposedly incurable disease when a cure for the disease might be discovered upon the same day?

"Take cancer, for instance. Thousands of persons throughout the country are dying of cancer. Should they be killed simply because they are suffering? It is already claimed that a permanent cancer cure has been discovered.

"I believe in doing everything possible to relieve suffering, but I would not take away even the last spark of life from a human body. Every person should be permitted to live until life comes to a natural end."

DOCTOR'S SAID "HOPELESS CASE"

Little Boy Barred From Hospital as Incurable.



"Little Stanley Peabody, not quite four years old, was so ill and run down that life was despaired of. He was very thin and emaciated, had a bad cough and was in such a serious condition that he was refused admission to the hospital," said Miss Ellen O'Leary, matron of the Children's home on Kirk street, Lowell, Mass., in a recent interview. "I began giving him Father John's Medicine and he has steadily improved. Today he is fat and strong and a splendidly healthy boy. We always keep Father John's Medicine in the children to prevent them from getting cold or when they need building up. It has been our family remedy for years, and I have great faith in it."

Mothers should remember that Father John's Medicine is a safe remedy for children as well as older people because it cures colds and throat and lung troubles without the use of alcohol or dangerous drugs in any form. Get a bottle to-day.

SOCIETY FOLK SEE DOG SHOW

Society again paid tribute to-day to the popularity of the fashionable fad—dashing French bulldog, the event being a continuation of the sixth annual show for the breed in Horticultural Hall. Many of the best-known women in society were prominent exhibitors and showed their loyalty to their canine pets by attending.

Little black chaps full of Gallic vivacity and with a distinct Parisian accent in their bark had the overwhelming call in color effect, while a scattering of white, near-white and cinnamon-hued representatives of the aristocracy of the dog world lent an air of variety.

Prominent exhibitors went far towards aiding in the decorative appearance of the hall with especially attractive booths.

Lawson Dogs Set Off.

In this regard, the dogs of high lineage from the Noswal kennels, Mrs. Arnold Lawson's, had an exceptionally handsome setting, a large group photograph of champions adorning the upper part, while each dog on display was distinguished by the setting of a polished brass sign, adorned with his name over his particular position in the booth.

Directly back of Mrs. Lawson's booth, the one reserved for the display of Herbert E. Young's fine array of champions, came in for a great deal of attention, the genuine effect being similar to that of the Noswal arrangement.

Nobleden Kennels went in for a showing of ribbons, gathered from different exhibits in sections of New England, the array of blues in a line being decidedly inspiring.

The youngsters were due to go through their paces as the heavy end of the programme set for yesterday and some promising little chaps were unearthed as a result.

Romeo 2d Makes Debut.

For a novice, Romeo 2d, exhibited by Mrs. J. R. Thibaut, undertook to make his debut into high society a most conspicuous one. Starting in Class 3 for novices under 22 pounds, he went through his competition with flying success only to repeat in the Number 12 class for green dogs never before shown. A number of minor awards also went to Romeo 2d, so that his initial test in the judging ring had all the appearance of a large success.

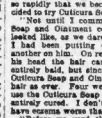
Mrs. Lawson's high class line of dogs served to make the competition interesting in a number of classes, Noswal Napoleon getting a win in the Number 4 class for novice dogs 22 pounds and over; Noswal Nabob adding to number of wins for the kennels by taking first in the Number 5 class for American bred dogs, champions barred, and repeating the feat in the competition for limit dogs under 22 pounds in Class Number 6. A number of minor awards also went to the credit of the Noswal kennels, the two first named dogs, with two wins apiece, holding the centre of interest.

Walter Burgess' Ronton as a high-class entry held his own in the events in which he was entered, the open class for dogs 22 pounds and over and the class for American bred dogs, champions barred.

BABY PITIFUL SIGHT WITH ECZEMA

Completely Covered. Bandaged from Head to Foot. Dared Not Wash Him. Used Cuticura Soap and Ointment 4 Weeks and He Was Cured.

"A few days after birth we noticed an inflamed spot on our baby's hip which soon began spreading until baby was completely covered even in his eyes, ears and scalp. For eight weeks he was bandaged from head to feet. He could not have a stitch of clothing on. Our regular physician pronounced it chronic eczema. He is a very able physician and ranks with the best in the locality, nevertheless, the disease began spreading until baby was completely covered. He was losing flesh so rapidly that we became alarmed and decided to try Cuticura Soap and Ointment.



"Not until I commenced using Cuticura Soap and Ointment could we tell what he looked like, as we dared not wash him, and I had been putting on application after another on him. On removing the scale from his head the hair came off, and left him entirely bald, but since we have been using Cuticura Soap and Ointment he has as much hair as ever. Four weeks after we began to use the Cuticura Soap and Ointment he was entirely cured. I don't like to say how much have eczema worse than our baby.

"Before we used the Cuticura Remedies we could hardly look at him, he was such a pitiful sight. He would fuss until I would treat him, they seemed to relieve him so much. Cuticura Soap and Ointment stand by themselves and the result they quickly and surely bring is their own recommendation." (Signed) Mrs. T. B. Rosser, Mill Hall, Pa., Feb. 20, '11.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment sold throughout the world. Send to Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Dept. 29A, Boston, for a liberal sample of each, post-free, with 32-p. book on the skin.

'SHOE' PROFITS CALLED MENACE

The government, in its suit for the dissolution of the United Shoe Machinery Co., is expected to allege that the profits made by that corporation are exorbitant as to constitute a menace to the shoe industry.

It is its complaint alleging several reasons why the corporation should be dissolved, the government says these profits have amounted in six years to $45,000,000 on a total investment of $20,000,000, or in excess of 37 per cent.

The two principal corporations, the United Shoe Machinery Company of New Jersey and the United Shoe Machinery Corporation, are named, together with eighteen subsidiary corporations and twenty-three individuals, the majority of the latter Massachusetts men.

It is charged that the defendants, by lawful combinations, contracts and conspiracies, by exclusive use and tying provisions in lease and license agreements with shoe manufacturers, for the use of their machines, by the acquisition and control of former competing shoe machinery manufacturing concerns, and by other unlawful acts, control a monopoly of the trade in shoe machinery in the United States. Edward P. Hurd of Newton, vice-president of the Trust, said he had heard nothing as to the details of the Government's charges and demands, and could not talk about a matter of which he knew practically nothing.

BEANS WIN OVER BEEF IN A WALK

Warren H. Buffum, the Harvard student who has reached San Bernardino, having stuck to a vegetarian diet since he started the 4,000-mile walk from Boston five months ago.

His brother, Jesse, substituting on a meat diet, gave up a week ago and finished the journey by train.

Professor Dudley A. Sargent of Harvard was responsible for the beans-beef coast walking contest. He wanted to test the efficiency of vegetable and meat diets. Many experiments have been made under his direction, but the professor desired a real test—one that would convince the country.

The coast-to-coast contest between beans and beef was his happy solution. He called for volunteers. "The Buffum brothers, both of whom are Harvard students, responded.

Warren Buffum stood the trip well, but he was as black as an Indian when he marched sturdily down Orange street and met his brother at the railroad station in San Bernardino.

"I've slept out of doors more than in the house since leaving the Middle West," he said. "Last night I slept in the snow. It was great."

Jesse's gang gave out at Needles and he was compelled to abandon his walk, when within a week of its end. After his brother left by train Warren had many adventures on the desert. One was the fired upon by men who tried to hold him up. He escaped both times, but fell into the clutches of an officious railroad policeman, who nearly released him after hearing his identity and mission.

The brothers left San Bernardino for a tramp through the San Bernardino Mountains for two or three days. They will make complete reports of their experiences to Dr. Sargent.

Shortly before 10 on the morning of July 4 the Buffum brothers of Worcester, N. H., Jesse and the latter's twenty years old and the latter seventy-four, started from the State House on Beacon hill on their 4000-mile walk to the Pacific Coast.

A few minutes before they started they had a long chat with Governor Foss, who gave them a letter to Governor Johnson of California. They already had one from Governor Bass to Governor Johnson.

The idea of indulging in the long transcontinental walk originated with Jesse Buffum early in the spring, long boys had indulged in many long walks in that State and had spent considerable of their time in the West.

SEEKING BOMB PLANTS IN EAST

Detective W. J. Burns, who has been in conference with the National Erectors' Association on matters growing out of the McNamara case, is to-day on his way from Indianapolis to Washington and New York on a hurried trip, during which he is expected to consult with Federal officials regarding a number of dynamiting cases in the East.

Detective Burns, who has received reports from his agents, who have been active in Eastern cities for some time, declared just before taking a train:

"I think there was more dynamite planted in various points of the East than has ever been discovered. It is likely that this has not been removed, as those who hid it would not be inclined to attempt to remove it now."

He intimated that a search was now under way to discover some of these plants and that startling developments might be expected.

Detective Burns will return to Indianapolis the latter part of the week, as the Federal grand jury investigation of dynamiting cases will then be under way again.

Every Woman Knows—But Sometimes Forgets

("Eatiest" in Household Helps)

"Every woman knows her complexion requires daily care, but how many are constantly forgetting it? The easiest and simplest way to preserve or restore youthful complexion is to lightly massage the face, neck and arms with a solution made by dissolving an original package of mayatone in eight ounces of witch hazel. This prevents the growth of hair, and keeps the skin soft, pliable and lovely.

"To remove chaps, cold sores, pimples and skin eruptions, cover with Mother's Salve before retiring. It also heals cuts, burns, scalds and sores, and is a reliable remedy for coughs, colds and catarrh.

"An excellent dry shampoo is made by mixing four ounces of therox with four ounces of corn meal, or with four ounces of powdered orris root. Sprinkle on the head and brush through the hair. It makes the hair light and fluffy, and beautifully lustrous."
